KINGSTON FOLKS MUST BE CLEAN

William Houghtaling better known as "Al" was arrested Tuesday evening by Officer Dugan on the same old charge of being drunk on the street Wednesday morning. Al who had just been released from jail pleaded for another chance and said he was on his way to Rhinebeck to work on a farm. The court was lenient and gave Al a chance. It was not necessary to add that Al tried to avail himself of the chance before and before he got over to Rhinebeck got so drunk that Officer Hest Thursday evening found him helplessly drunk uptown and for his own safety locked him up in jail. Al was so drunk that he was in a shape to be arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning and even now it happened if sober enough Saturday Al will explain why he did not go to Rhinebeck.

"SEPTEMBER MORN" A DECEMBER NIGHT

Sheriff on a Long Chase for Woman
Reported to be Trying Back to
Nature Stunt High in Hurley
Mountains.

Sheriff Shultis and Under Sheriff Hornbeck were led a merry chase over the Hurley mountains Thursday evening in pursuit of an alleged September Morn only to find that at the end of their chase they had been in pursuit of September Eve for when the chase ended in capture they found that instead of the bright shades of morn it was the dusk of evening that had been the cause of the "call to arms." Instead of a real "September Morn" as the county officials had been warned to look out for they found a person fully equipped to withstand the chilly blasts of night air which blow over the Hurley mountains from high up in the snow covered Catskills.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Sheriff Shultis was notified that Mary DuBois, aged about 68 years, was roaming the Hurley mountains garbed as is the subject of the famous painting "September Morn." With Under Sheriff Hornbeck, Sheriff Shultis left for the wilds back of Hurley with his trusty Ford and in a short time came upon the scene of action. After progressing high up in the mountains the Ford was abandoned and the remainder of the trip made on foot.

From the information which had been given the officials they knew that a supposedly demented person was at large and not until the capture were they informed as to who it was.

Mary DuBois, colored, who for some time lived in Kingston proved to be the person looked for. Wednesday Mrs. DuBois left the home of her daughter and began her back to nature stunt. For the past six months she had been living with her daughter and has appeared to be somewhat demented. When she left home Wednesday afternoon she started for the mountains and from the information which was circulated in the neighborhood it was claimed that she had abandoned customary attire and was roaming about in the woods in nature's clothing. This proved to be a slight exaggeration for the sheriff found that she was completely clad although one foot was encased in a shoe and the other in a slipper and there were other peculiar combinations about her clothing.

After a chase lasting well into the night she was found and brought to Kingston. As she had been a resident of the city but six months she is still a city chalice and was taken to the City Home where she will be cared for until an examination can be made as to her sanity. This will probably be done some time today and she will be committed to some institution.

FARMERS LOAN TO INCREASE CROPS

Delays of Justice.

Legal records supply many instances of long intervals between the crime and the arrest. The leading case is that of Eugene Aram, who was hanged for the murder of Clarke fourteen years after the offense. In the eighteenth century a man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child thirty-five years after the crime. There is also the well known case of Governor Wall, who was hanged in 1802 for a murder committed in 1782. But Sir James Stephens recalls what is surely the most remarkable case on record. He prosecuted in 1863 a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register sixty years before.—London Chronicle.

Feats of Memory.

Wonderful feats of memory have been performed by men of no learning. Jedediah Buxton, an illiterate peasant, could tramp over a piece of ground and tell its contents in square feet or inches as accurately as if he had measured it with a chain. Being asked suddenly in a field how many cubical eighths of an inch there are in a triangular body whose three sides are respectively 23,140,780 yards, 5,662,728 yards and 64,965 yards, he gave the exact solution within an hour or so.

Indispensable.

At length the fools grew tired of having edgards made at their expense, and at a concerted signal all fell dead.

At the funeral wise men were seen to weep bitterly.

"How shall we make a living now?" these howled and cast dust upon their heads in token of their desolation.—New York Post.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, May 10.—Highland Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, celebrated its eleventh anniversary on Monday evening and received officially the D. D. G. M., Mrs. Laura T. Allerton, of Cairo, Greene county, and the Rev. G. H. Scofield, the A. G. L. of this place. There were 125 ladies and gentlemen who participated in the festivities. There were delegations from Singletts, Kingston and Poughkeepsie. The chapter room was decorated with palms and potted plants and Old Glory was in great evidence. At the proper time the marshal, Mrs. Philip Schantz, entered, carrying the American flag and the officers gave a pretty drill and flag salute afterward under her direction. The W. W. Mrs. Annie Maynard, extended a cordial welcome to all and business was taken up. The acting grand conductress, Mrs. Suzanne E. Decker, announced in waiting the D. D. G. M. and W. G. L. and star, who were admitted and introduced by her in her usual pleasing manner with very interesting remarks, which brought in the true spirit of unity, fraternity and patriotism, to which the W. W. Mrs. Annie Maynard, responded to most fittingly in regard to Eastern Star and Masonic work. The addresses of Mrs. Allerton and Mr. Scofield were impressive and helpful and all accounts give evidence that they are working faithfully for the success of the Order of Eastern Star and with the courage, perseverance and energy that they possess the fulfillment of their duties will bring all closer together in the promotion of peace and good will. The worthy matron in her pleasing manner presented the deputy with a cut glass reliquary, Martin Schantz, past patron, presented the A. G. L. with a thermos bottle and the associate matron, Mrs. Scofield, mother of the lecturer, in behalf of the chapter, presented to Mrs. Allerton in a very pleasing manner a beautiful bouquet of carnations. These were received and responded to most graciously by the representatives. The Star degrees were conferred upon one candidate in a very pleasing manner and the officers of the chapter were complimented in regard to the efficiency of ritualistic work. Martin Schantz was acting marshal with Suzanne E. Decker as grand conductress in escorting grand staff to seats. All were delighted with the remarks from Miss Grace V. Merritt and Mr. Golden, past officers from Clinton Chapter. At the close of the chapter work a banquet was served in the R. of P. room by Auxiliary Club of M. E. Church, who they say are noted for the fine feasts they can serve. This time, report says, all former efforts were eclipsed. The tables were decorated with geraniums, jars covered with colors of the points of star, also candles of the five colors in candelabra upon official's table. Every one present was loud in their expressions of appreciation for the fine "menu" and the way it was served, which proved well the ability in that branch of work of the club members. After the banquet all enjoyed a social time and in the early hours of the morning all left for their homes thinking of the royal good time and hoping for many similar ones during the year, and many said they departed feeling that the Eleventh District was a good one to belong to.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Plass, Mrs. F. L. Palmer, Mrs. Julia Worden, Miss Dennis, Miss Laura Palmer and Mrs. R. H. Decker motored to Kingston and attended Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., when they received Mrs. Wurtz, grand matron of the Grand Chapter, for a social visit. They were very appreciative of the fine time given them. Mrs. DeWitt DuBois was a shopper in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday. Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, who have been in New York city for four weeks, are expected home the last of the week. Mrs. J. W. Foster is improving finely and they expect to have her home in a week or so. James Oakley of Stone Ridge, formerly of this place, has been a guest of relatives here for a short time. J. W. Foster, F. L. Metcalf, H. E. Wilcox and H. W. Maynard were in New York city, also Long Island, on business last week. H. H. Decker spent Wednesday in Pleasant Valley. Wednesday afternoon the Presbyterian Church was open for the mission circle. They had a good attendance, and a very interesting meeting. Red Cross Society met Monday afternoon and worked for the soldiers. They made bandages and other necessary requisites for hospital service, and sent them to the city where they will be looked after by the leading people in charge there. The missionary lecture given in the Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening by the Rev. J. W. McKeon was most interesting in regard to present conditions and everyone who attended was delighted.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wilklow and Mrs. A. P. Wilklow were in Poughkeepsie this week calling on A. P. Wilklow, who has been in Dr. Sadler's Sanitarium for a few days. Glad to report he is getting along very nicely from the operation.

Alfred Palmer of New Jersey has been a guest of his parents here for a few days.

Some of the young set from here will attend the dance in Woolsey's Hall at Milton this Friday evening. They look forward to a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox are spending a few days in Pittsburgh with their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Schamerhorn.

Miss Ruth Harcourt has been entertaining guests from out of town.

Mrs. R. H. Decker has invitations for O. E. S. visits at Middletown, Fort Jervis and Goshen in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hopper of Vineyard avenue have as their guests Mrs. Harry Schumacher of Brooklyn.

Everything seems to be climbing up. It is said trolley, ferry, theater and postage stamps are on the up movement. We all wish there would be a down movement.

Last Friday evening, a party from here consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Plass, Rev. G. H. Scofield, Miss Laura Palmer, Mrs. Byron Clevenger, Mrs. F. L. Palmer and Mrs. R. H. Decker motored to Newburgh and attended a meeting of the Order of Eastern Star at which time they received their D. D. G. M. and A. G. L. of the 10th district. There were present over 400 people.

Next Tuesday, May 16, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be entertained at Glen View, home of Mrs. R. H. Decker. They expect to have a fine time.

Several from here went to Newburgh Friday evening to Washington's Headquarters for reception of Marshall Joffre and Premier Viviani.

Thursday afternoon at high school building, Mrs. Kirby gave instructions to many for canning vegetables. This is a fine thing to know for every housewife, prefers home canning of fruit and vegetables to those put up in factories. The meeting was well attended and her advice greatly appreciated.

Official board held a very instructive meeting. There was quite a large number present.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Decker had as their guests this week, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Allerton of Cairo, Greene county.

THE KITCHEN CABINET.

A creed of the Open Road—To live our highest in all things that pertain to us, and to lend a hand as best we can to all others for the same end—Ralph Waldo Trine.

ASPARAGUS AS A TONIC.

Asparagus as well as many other green, tender vegetables not only add variety and flavor to various dishes, but supplies ballast to cleanse the digestive tract and mineral salts to stimulate the various functions and remove waste. An old Roman proverb was, "Let it be done quicker than you would boil asparagus," which discovery years ago has not been improved upon. This tender, highly prized vegetable should be cooked quickly to hold all its fine flavor and lose as little of its salts as possible. The best method to have the whole stalk cooked at once is to put the bunches well tied into a deep pan, an old-fashioned tin coffee pot is an ideal dish, as the asparagus then will stand upright. The best sauce for asparagus is perhaps plain melted butter. Dipping the stalks into the butter and eaten as one does celery. The following sauce is rather difficult to make but is the best of all sauces for asparagus.

Mousseline Sauce.—Take a half cupful of butter, three egg yolks, two and a half tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a few grains of paprika, and a fourth of a cupful of heavy cream. Cream four tablespoonfuls of the butter, beating the egg yolks in thoroughly, one at a time, then add the cream and salt and pepper. Set the mixture over hot water and cook until it thickens, stirring constantly. Then beat in the lemon juice and add the rest of the butter in small bits, beating with a whisk. Do not rub.

Asparagus served in a rich white sauce served on toast is a dish most common. Asparagus cut in small pieces and cooked in milk is another good way to save every bit of the flavor. Season with salt, pepper and butter and if liked, a small amount of flour may be added for thickening.

Asparagus cooked and added to an omelet is another good dish. Simply fold in a few tablespoonfuls of asparagus as the omelet goes into the pan.

Poached eggs served with a white sauce and asparagus is another good dish. Serve the sauce on buttered toast with a poached egg on each.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 11, 1917.

The Legislature whose session ended with Thursday achieved a notable record along many lines, chief among these being the placing of New York State to the fore through emergency appropriations and needed laws for the strengthening of the National Guard and Naval Militia and the conserving of the natural resources of the state. Provision has been made for a military census to inventory the population and list the qualifications of citizens for work in other lines beside military service; for development of the military training plan for the schools; securing the food supply and the development of the farming industry through a new department of Foods and Markets; and last but not least, adoption of a State Budget which is a new departure in State finance. These are the chief constructive measures and their passage may be largely ascribed to the extraordinary conditions brought on by the declaration of a state of war with Germany. To these same conditions may be charged the responsibility for the failure of the Barge Canal Terminal appropriations for Hudson Valley cities. While a local measure, this proposal was of State-wide importance and will, doubtless, eventually meet with the approval which has been denied this year at Albany.

In spite of all the claims made for the ability of the submarine to undertake successfully the long, slow voyage across the Atlantic, the feasibility of bombardment of Atlantic coast cities on this side by the German submarines is very much to be questioned. Berlin, with characteristic audacity, makes a virtue of necessity by declaring that Germany holds no reason for an offensive against America but will continue the use of the submarines in the restricted area proclaimed. So, we are left to conclude, American battleships and merchant craft, will not be subject to attack outside this zone, a policy dictated more by impotency than by any benevolent intentions toward us. Meanwhile, one Berlin editor styles our aid to the Allies as "a blown eggshell" and another styles our preparations as "a mobilization of millionaires." Once an American expeditionary force is at the front in France we will have an opportunity to judge the real state of feeling of the German soldiers toward a formerly neutral foe.

The biggest fish story to date is that the Germans are sending out submarines disguised as whales. Just about as reasonable is the report from New York that a Mr. Saunders knows of a self-propelling harpoonlike contrivance which sinks a submarine on sight. With the censors keeping the lid on the actual accomplishments of the undersea terrors, all sorts of yarns may be expected and that expectation also holds good of the mobilization of inventors in Washington. Self-confidence is characteristic of the average inventor and enthusiastic belief in the children of their brains is also a quality of all such. Before actual construction and successful operation of the numerous proposed destroyers of the "subs" the country can look for a reasonable wait. It is not going to be any pleasure trip on the ocean, this carrying of the offensive against submarines operating in the vicinity of the British Isles.

The Dorothy Freeman Flag Fund is unique in many respects. In the first place it is eminently practical as well as patriotic, and in the second, the contributions have been wholly voluntary and are largely from the children of the city, who enjoy the prospect of having a part in a project to put a permanent flagstaff and flag on Kingston Academy Green. Too often is it the case that enterprises of this character aim too high and fall far short of their aim, as was the case with Marjorie Sterrett's laudable, but lacking, impulse to give the United States Navy a battleship. The girl whose name this fund bears, a promising miss of eleven years, sent in a dollar to The Freeman with the request that it be used to start a fund for the purchase of a flagstaff and pole for the newly laid out park. Publication of the initial offer was made and subscriptions began to come in, slowly at first, and finally with a rush of small sums which showed unmistakably the strong appeal the flag fund has made upon the juvenile mind of the Colonial City. The flag and staff are now in a fair way to be achieved in ample time for the Memorial Day exercises. And the delightful thing about it all is that the money has been raised without any solicitation whatsoever, which goes far to show what people can do once their interest is aroused in a worthy cause.

"Was that operation strictly necessary?" "Of course it was. The doctor needed the money."—Baltimore American.

"The people in the flat opposite bought their piano at auction." "I suspected as much; it's 'going, going, gone' all the time."—Boston Transcript.

"Do you find that your constituents agree with you?" "No," replied Senator Sorghum. "But that doesn't cause me any apprehension. If they refuse to be guided there's plenty of time for me to come around and agree with them."—Washington Star.

This is Love.
It was the glorious spring, but it was dusty and the rude wind blew grit into their faces as the youth and the maid turned the corner.

"Sweetums," he cooed gently, drawing her close to his manly heart, "did you get any in your eyes?" "Yes, my jewel," she simpered, mopping her eye with a handkerchief which she had extracted from some hiding place in her attire.

"Ah! in which of your glorious orbs reflecting the light of heaven did that Hunnish piece of dust intrude?" he questioned fiercely.

"My right," she said, and added, "sweetheart, did you get any in your eyes?" "Yes, my dove," he responded, while he mopped away at his eye with the same handkerchief which she had used.

"How sweet," she exclaimed, "and yours was in the right eye, too?" "Yes, light of my life!" "Adolphus," she whispered rapturously, "do you think I could have been part of the same grain of dust?" "I hope so!" he answered fervently.

"Wouldn't it be lovely, honey?" she whispered.

"Stirring!" he breathed.—London Ideas.

Poor Sophia's Cases.

Dr. Ronald H. Curtis, the well known zoologist of Rochester, said in a recent lecture:

"I take no stock in all these yarns about the disinterested affection of animals. An animal's affection is parasitic—your dog loves you because you feed it. Analyze these yarns about animal affection and they turn out like Sophia's case."

"There was a rich old maid who had an ill-natured cur named Sophia. The old maid died, leaving her fortune to her nephew, who had lived with her. I met the nephew one day and ventured to offer him my sincere sympathy. He said:

"Yes, it's very sad. And the morning after my aunt's decease, the dog Sophia also died."

"Grief, I suppose," said I.

"No," said he, "poison."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Good Use For Them.

"My dear," said Mr. Tjones as soon as she thought her husband was comfortable enough to listen to bad news without exploding. "I don't want you to be angry, because she's one of the best girls we ever had, and I don't know where we should find another, and—"

"Well, well," interrupted Mr. Tjones, "what has Katie done now?" "Before I tell you, you must remember that she is infected with the war spirit just like the rest of us—and you're an ardent patriot yourself and you shouldn't get out of temper because—"

"For heaven's sake, spring it. What did she do?"

"She scrubbed the kitchen floor today with your military brushes!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHY BLOSSOMS ARE COLORED.

One of the greatest advantages of modern school methods, as compared with the school methods of our parents' survival, is that they teach the children to observe many things which the parents have never even stopped to think about. Take the blossoms of our many beautiful flowering plants, for example. Everyone has marveled at the multitude of shapes and hues to be found in the various blossoms, but how many of us ever wondered why the flower petals are brightly colored, while the calyx and the leaves are green?

Almost everyone could guess that it was to aid the bees and butterflies in finding the honey bearing portion of the plant, but the pity is that so many of us never even thought of the problem.

Beautiful colors do more to make the world happy than any other one thing, in all probability. Their effect upon the average person may not be so great as that of beautiful music, but the colors occur so much more frequently than the music, and are available to so many more people, that music must take second place as a world beautifier.

May it not be that the glory of the blossoms' hue was meant to effect an even greater purpose than that of self propagation? I believe that it was meant to make you and me happier and the leaves were colored green to set off the beautiful blossoms, and rest the weary eye of the man.

There are many wondrous things to be learned in nature, and I am glad that my children and yours are going to know more about them than we do. With a love of nature and an understanding of many of her intricate ways, no one will ever grow despondent or faint hearted. It is the greatest preventive of suicide in the world.

Can you tell why some plants produce flowers of different shades during the same season? Did you know that the honey bees feed on only one kind of flower until they have a load ready for the hive, so as not to mix their drinks? Here is where the color of the blossom aids them most, and it also proves that bees either have a well developed sense of color, or an acute sense of smell.

Sometimes part of the flower petals are green and sometimes there are no petals at all, but in the latter case there is no need of bees transferring the pollen from flower to flower, so nature makes no effort to attract them.

Certain plants have highly colored leaves and dull hued blossoms, but most of these are tropical plants which do many strange and inexplicable things. The color in the leaves and petals is derived from small cells in which the plant foods and the oxygen are digested. There is no digestive process carried on in the petals, however, if my memory fails not, and the chlorophyll cells in the leaves do most of this work. Their color fades if they do not have access to sunlight and air, but these conditions do not seem to affect the color of the blossoms materially.

Cricketer-Clergyman and Alms Dish.

Skill at cricket may help a parson to win the hearts of his flock, but it cannot often be directly helpful in his clerical duties. Rev. E. S. Carter, however, does record one case. When he went to York Minster as vicar-choral, the dean, Mr. Duncombe, did not like his playing cricket.

But one Sunday morning, as Mr. Carter took the alms dish from the choirboys who did the collecting, one of the awkward collecting bags with three wooden handles fell off. Mr. Carter instinctively fielded it, catching it neatly with his right hand while he held the heavy dish steady in his left.

After the service the dean said, with a smile, "Well, Mr. Carter, I see there are some advantages in being able to play cricket."—London Daily Mail.

Mapped His Course in Life.

The monotony of the adjudicator's task in an easy competition is somewhat relieved by the unconscious humor contained in many of the papers.

One boy of eleven summers, writing on "What I Wish to Become When I Am a Man," expressed a desire for a miner's career, then proceeded: "When I grow up I will lead a Christian life, if my evil spirits do not get too far on me. I will not gamble, nor will I go in the summer time to the races and bet all my money, and leave my wife without any money, and every week or so I will put a pound or so in the bank. I will take it out and enjoy myself, and if I have much money to take me to London I will go and see the Oxford crew and Cambridge crew racing on the Thames, and I will bet on the Oxford crew."—London Standard.

Too Often.

George Ade, in his quality of cynical bachelor, said at the Chicago Athletic club:

"I was sitting with a little girl of eight the other afternoon. She looked up from her Hans Anderson and said: "Does m-t-r-a-g-e spell marriage, Mr. Ade?"

"Yes, my child," said I."

OPEN HOUSE AT HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT

Tonight at 8 o'clock the high school will be thrown open to the public who may then enjoy a very pleasing entertainment and demonstration of class work at no expense other than their time and good will.

The seniors on the "Maroon" staff have planned a very and practical community night and through the co-operation of their friends, the faculty, they have obtained the privilege of directing the evening's gathering.

As described at some length in last evening's paper, there will be demonstration classes in manual training, printing, domestic economy and Red Cross sewing. The art room will be open for inspection and some of the recently completed designs will be in sight. The sewing department will be engaged in its Red Cross work. There will be a regular class demonstration in pie making in demonstration room No. 33. This will be conducted by a couple of students instead of by a teacher.

During the first part of the evening there will be a half hour's entertainment in the auditorium consisting of a recital and concert by soloists and orchestra. Everyone is heartily invited to attend and enjoy the entertainment which promises to be very good although planned for at short notice.

It may seem odd to some that any group of students will go to this trouble and yet apparently receive no material profit for the organization which they represent. Then let it be said that there will be home made candy, strawberry shortcake and coffee for sale on the ground floor for those who may desire to be refreshed. Also there will be a dance in the "gym" from 8:30 until 11 o'clock. For the dance there will be charged a moderate admission of 25 cents per couple.

Part of what the seniors take in on this occasion will be turned over to the Red Cross, so that the undertaking from all viewpoints must be considered as very public spirited and novel and shows a desire on the part of the students for good fellowship.

Any young man wearing a maroon and white ribbon on his coat may be approached to act as a guide, for each fellow wearing this badge will do so for the purpose of being of service to anyone who may desire information about the building.

"SEPTEMBER MORN" A DECEMBER NIGHT

Sheriff on a Long Chase for Woman
Reported to be Trying Back to
Nature Stunt High in Hurley
Mountains.

Sheriff Shultis and Under Sheriff Hornbeck were led a merry chase over the Hurley mountains Thursday evening in pursuit of an alleged September Morn only to find that at the end of their chase they had been in pursuit of September Eve for when the chase ended in capture they found that instead of the bright shades of morn it was the dusk of evening that had been the cause of the "call to arms." Instead of a real "September Morn" as the county officials had been warned to look out for they found a person fully equipped to withstand the chilly blasts of night air which blow over the Hurley mountains from high up in the snow covered Catskills.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Sheriff Shultis was notified that Mary DuBois, aged about 68 years, was roaming the Hurley mountains garbed as is the subject of the famous painting, "September Morn." With Under Sheriff Hornbeck, Sheriff Shultis left for the wilds back of Hurley with his trusty Ford and in a short time came upon the scene of action. After progressing high up in the mountains the Ford was abandoned and the remainder of the trip made on foot.

From the information which had been given the officials they knew that a supposedly demented person was at large and not until the capture were they informed as to who it was. Mary DuBois, colored, who for some time lived in Kingston proved to be the person looked for. Wednesday Mrs. DuBois left the home of her daughter and began her back to nature stunt. For the past six months she had been living with her daughter and has appeared to be somewhat demented. When she left home Wednesday afternoon she started for the mountains and from the information which was circulated in the neighborhood it was claimed that she had abandoned customary attire and was roaming about the woods in nature's clothing. This proved to be a slight exaggeration for the sheriff found that she was completely clad although one foot was encased in a shoe and the other in a slipper and there were other peculiar combinations about her clothing.

After a chase lasting well into the night she was found and brought to Kingston. As she had been a resident of the city but six months she is still a city charge and was taken to the City House where she will be cared for until an examination can be made as to her sanity. This will probably be done some time today and she will be committed to some institution.

FARMERS LOAN TO INCREASE CROPS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Utica, May 11.—To date the sum of $64,292.53 has been apportioned from headquarters in this city to the farmers of New York state to assist in the production of bumper crops in the Empire State this year. The fund has been established by the banks of the state and the money is loaned to farmers at a 4 1/2 per cent rate of interest. The report issued today follows: Total amount of loans on file, $64,292.53, total acres planted, 9,403; acres of oats, 2,331; acres of corn, 1,636; acres of potatoes, 1,253; acres of beans, 1,151; acres of cabbage, 177; acres of huck-wheat, 1,041; miscellaneous, spring wheat, etc., 1,277; number of loans, 488; average amount of loan, $109; number of local loan committees, 470; number of banks acting as agents, 280.

Delays of Justice.
Legal records supply many instances of long intervals between the crime and the arrest. The leading case is that of Eugene Aram, who was hanged for the murder of Clarke fourteen years after the offense. In the eighteenth century a man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child thirty-five years after the crime. There is also the well known case of Governor Wall, who was hanged in 1802 for a murder committed in 1782. But Sir James Stephens recalls what is surely the most remarkable case on record. He prosecuted in 1863 a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register sixty years before.—London Chronicle.

Feats of Memory.
Wonderful feats of memory have been performed by men of no learning. Jedediah Buxton, an illiterate peasant, could tramp over a piece of ground and tell its contents in square feet or inches as accurately as if he had measured it with a chain. Being asked suddenly in a field how many cucumbers of an inch there are in a triangular body whose three sides are respectively 23,145,789 yards, 5,043,725 yards and 64,895 yards, he gave the exact solution within an hour or so.

Indispensable.
At length the fools grew tired of being adored made at their expense, and at a concerted signal all fell dead. At the funeral wise men were seen to weep bitterly.
"How shall we make a living now?" three howled and cast dust upon their heads in token of their desolation.—New York Post.

BUY STONE-LINED Refrigerators MOST ECONOMICAL and SANITARY

In choosing a refrigerator be careful lest your judgment be guided by appearances more than by scientific construction.

All our refrigerators are purchased with the view of giving the public the best obtainable in an ice-saving and sanitary cooler.

We can recommend the stone-lined refrigerator to be the best on the market.

The inside of stone-lined refrigerators is like the clear, cold, pure air of a mountain top. They are ice-savers. There's no mingling of odors—no soggy food—even salt will remain dry.

Why They're the Best

A housewife does not buy stone-lined refrigerator—she simply advances its purchase price, and its ice-saving and food-saving refunds to her what she paid; and, then, it goes on saving money for her day by day—year after year!

The real purpose of a stone-lined refrigerator—is to PRESERVE FOODS!

Beyond this, it is to preserve them for the longest period, at the least expense for ice.

Suppose a stone-lined refrigerator saves a housewife 5 cents a day on ice—that item alone amounts to $18.00 a year! And—that's half the price of a GOOD Alaska refrigerator!

On this basis, an Alaska will pay for itself in two years; and, ten years later, will have saved $180. If a housewife had this $180 in cash, in her hands, right now—to spend it at once on whatever she needs for a home—think of all the good things she could get to add to the comforts of that home!

On the basis of food spoilage—suppose the Alaska saves just 10 cents a day. That amounts to $36 a year. In ten years—$360. Added to the $180 ice saving, over a period of ten years, it totals $540.

It is almost enough to buy a modern motor car.

There is no BETTER value on the market than the stone-lined refrigerators; and this is proved by the fact that more than one million are in use.

Annual Election of Officers Held Preceding Banquet—To Expedite Work of Supreme Court.

Surrogate Walter N. Gill was elected president of the Ulster County Bar preceding the banquet held at the Stuyvesant on Wednesday evening. The other officers elected were Vice president, D. G. Atkins; recording secretary, Henry Klein; corresponding secretary, Recorder Andrew Lang; treasurer, Assistant District Attorney J. DePuy Hasbrouck; trustees, Philip Elling, D. B. Deyo and DeWitt Roosa. At the business session a committee consisting of F. E. W. Darrow, Mayor Canfield and County Clerk C. K. Loughran, were appointed to make arrangements relating to passing a rule that the clerk of the trial court should on Friday before court convene make up a list of ten cases for trial. This will do away with the delay that attends the opening of court and the making up of a day calendar on the opening of court. This rule has been adopted in other counties in the state and has been found to work successfully.

SOME OLD ULSTER CHINA

Rare Set in Honor of Landing of Lafayette Exhibited.

The wife of the Rev. Peter Crispell, pastor of the Reformed Episcopal Church of the Corner Stone, has placed in the museum at Washington's Headquarters a "Lafayette landing set," which is one of the toilet sets, including bowl and pitcher, made to commemorate Lafayette's landing at Castle Garden, New York, in 1824. Mrs. Crispell inherited the set from her great-great-grandmother, Marie DePuy of Accord, Ulster county. In "Historical China in America" Alice Morse Earle thus describes this set: "The border is a handsome design, of what I think is intended for laurel leaves but which more resemble ash and clusters of flowers which are perhaps laurel blossoms and larger flowers which may be wild roses but look like jonquills. In the center is a spirited design bearing at the base in dark blue letters the words, 'Landing of Lafayette at Castle Garden, 16 August, 1824.' In the foreground of the view are marshes or sentinels on horseback; then comes a row of six smoking cannon and then the bay, covered with the flag shipping and small sailboats and two clumps, strangely shaped steamers, the Robert Fulton and Chancellor Livingston, with their side wheels quite out of the water. At the right a small bridge over the water leads to an enclosed fort over which floats the flag of the U. S. Over all is a sky of strongly defined clouds." This rare and valuable set will remain on exhibition in the State Museum.—Newburgh News.

SUFFS TO LEARN TO SOW.

Intensive Gardening to be Subject of Saturday's Session.

"Practical Intensive Gardening" will be the subject on which Mrs. A. E. Seranton Taylor of Norfolk, Connecticut, will speak at the home of Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting which will take place under the auspices of the Kingston Woman Suffrage Party is open to everyone who is interested in gardening on a small scale. Mrs. Taylor is a woman of wealth and culture and she speaks several languages fluently, but her hobby is experimentation in vegetable growing, and she raises a great many varieties on comparatively small pieces of ground. She grows all the vegetables that are used in her home both for her family and her guests.

A regular monthly meeting of the Kingston Woman Suffrage Party was held Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. M. J. Michael, Mrs. John W. Searing, chairman of the party, presiding. Mrs. Robert Rodie was elected recording secretary to fill the place made vacant by Mrs. Hyman Roosa; Miss Winifred Fuller was appointed chairman of the membership committee, and Dr. Ebba Dederer chairman of the speakers' committee. Miss Minnie Hinkley of Poughkeepsie, who is very active in suffrage work in Dutchess county, gave an interesting account of the campaign methods used on the other side of the river.

Episcopal Women Meet.

Miss Leila Ramsdell of Newburgh was elected Thursday afternoon to succeed Mrs. E. C. Representing the Women's Auxiliaries of the Episcopal Churches of the counties of Ulster, Rockland, Orange and Sullivan. Mrs. Rushmore has been in office for the past 12 years. Other officers will be announced today. A service was conducted in St. Paul's and the sermon delivered by the Rev. Mr. Davies of Marlborough. After a luncheon, partaken of in the chapel, a business meeting was held, officers elected and speakers heard.

Autos Collide on Broadway.

Thursday evening a touring car driven by a woman collided with Miller's taxicab on Broadway at Delaware avenue. At the time the taxicab was on its way up Broadway close to the curb and the touring car was also bound uptown and running in the car track. The touring car was ahead of the taxi and when Delaware avenue was reached the touring car suddenly turned to go into Delaware avenue and ran into the taxi. The damage to both machines was slight. No one was injured.

This may all be changed by the National Military Census preparation for which it is being made.—Pine Hill Optic.

Soldier Obeyed Orders.

Private Smith of Company E, Tenth Regiment, Catskill, has been exonerated from firing at the automobile of his superior officers when they refused his command to halt one day last week. Smith saw a machine filled with men in officers' uniforms approaching the forbidden zone at the aqueduct, while on guard. When they spotted up the engine at his order to halt, he fired a shot into the rear tire of the machine. He was tried on charges, but a regimental court said the private acted within his bounds. The names of the occupants of the car were not made public.

You never can tell. The man who lives too well is often ill.

Uranus.
It was on the evening of March 13, 1781, that William Herschel, at Slough, England, discovered a new planet. Wishing to pay a compliment to George III., his patron, he gave it the name of Georgium sidus, or the Georgian star. Other English astronomers, wishing to compliment the discoverer himself, suggested the name of Herschel. Continental astronomers proposed that the old mythological system be followed, and the name of Uranus was accepted by the scientific world for the seventh planet.

Home and the Wife.
The wife who conscientiously executes her duties in the home is as great a wealth producer as her husband, according to Professor B. R. Andrews of Columbia university. A woman who takes care of the home gives her husband many comforts that would cost him twice as much to get anywhere else. The time will soon come, he predicted, when the housewife's value will be realized more fully, and many wives will prefer to spend their time in the home instead.

Chief Montowok of New York city gave a very interesting lecture in the Methodist Church to a large and appreciative audience. Chief Montowok gave a very vivid description of Indian life and customs as lived by him and also spoke very feelingly of his embracing the religion of Jesus Christ; what it has done for him; transferred him from a savage Indian to a preacher of the Gospel. He has the Bible at his tongue's end, repeating many, many verses from memory and gave to his attentive audience a most wonderful lesson of what it means to be a Bible student amid all kinds of adversities and hardships. At the close of the lecture a great many shook hands with the chief and bought postal card photographs of him to keep in memory the message given by a man without an education but as he said of himself, a self-made man with the help of God.

American Mineral Oil

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It sets as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food. The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation. KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 11, 1917.

The Legislature whose session ended with Thursday achieved a notable record along many lines, chief among these being the placing of New York State to the fore through emergency appropriations and needed laws for the strengthening of the National Guard and Naval Militia and the conserving of the natural resources of the state. Provision has been made for a military census to inventory the population and list the qualifications of citizens for work in other lines beside military service; for development of the military training plan for the schools; securing the food supply and the development of the farming industry through a new department of Foods and Markets; and last but not least, adoption of a State Budget, which is a new departure in State finance. These are the chief constructive measures and their passage may be largely ascribed to the extraordinary conditions brought on by the declaration of a state of war with Germany. To these same conditions may be charged the responsibility for the failure of the Barge Canal Terminal appropriations for Hudson Valley cities. While a local measure, this proposal was of State-wide importance and will, doubtless, eventually meet with the approval which has been denied this year at Albany.

In spite of all the claims made for the ability of the submarine to undertake successfully the long, slow voyage across the Atlantic, the feasibility of bombardment of Atlantic coast cities on this side by the German submarines is very much to be questioned. Berlin, with characteristic audacity, makes a virtue of necessity by declaring that Germany holds no reason for an offensive against America but will continue the use of the submarines in the restricted area proclaimed. So, we are left to conclude, American battleships and merchant craft, will not be subject to attack outside this zone, a policy dictated more by impolicy than by any benevolent intentions toward us. Meanwhile, one Berlin editor styles our aid to the Allies as "a blown eggshell" and another styles our preparations as "a mobilization of millionaires." Once an American expeditionary force is at the front in France we will have an opportunity to judge the real state of feeling of the German soldiers toward a formerly neutral foe.

The biggest fish story to date is that the Germans are sending out submarines disguised as whales. Just about as reasonable is the report from New York that a Mr. Saunders knows of a self-propelling harpoonlike contrivance which sinks a submarine on sight. With the censors keeping the lid on the actual accomplishments of the undersea terrors, all sorts of yarns may be expected and that expectation also holds good of the mobilization of inventors in Washington. Self-confidence is characteristic of the average inventor and enthusiastic belief in the children of their brains is also a quality of all such. Before actual construction and successful operation of the numerous proposed destroyers of the "subs" the country can look for a reasonable wait. It is not going to be any pleasure trip on the ocean, this carrying of the offensive against submarines operating in the vicinity of the British Isles.

The Dorothy Freeman Flag Fund is unique in many respects. In the first place it is eminently practical as well as patriotic, and in the second, the contributions have been wholly voluntary and are largely from the children of the city, who enjoy the prospect of having a part in a project to put a permanent flagstaff and flag on Kingston Academy Green. Too often is it the case that enterprises of this character aim too high and fall far short of their aim, as was the case with Marjorie Sterrett's laudable, but lacking, impulse to give the United States Navy a battleship. The girl whose name this fund bears, a promising miss of eleven years, sent in a dollar to The Freeman with the request that it be used to start a fund for the purchase of a flagstaff and pole for the newly laid out park. Publication of the initial offer was made and subscriptions began to come in, slowly at first, and finally with a rush of small sums which showed unmistakably the strong appeal the flag fund has made upon the juvenile mind of the Colonial City. The flag and staff are now in a fair way to be achieved in ample time for the Memorial Day exercises. And the delightful thing about it all is that the money has been raised without any solicitation whatsoever, which goes far to show what people can do once their interest is aroused in a worthy cause.

"Was that operation strictly necessary?" "Of course it was. The doctor needed the money."—Baltimore American.

"The people in the flat opposite thought their piano at auction." "I suspected as much; it's going, going, going all the time."—Boston Transcript.

"Do you find that your constituents agree with you?" "No," replied Senator Sorghum. "But that doesn't cause me any apprehension. If they refuse to be guided there's plenty of time for me to come around and agree with them."—Washington Star.

This is Love.

It was the glorious spring, but it was dusty and the rude wind blew grit into their faces as the youth and the maid turned the corner.

"Sweetums," he cooed gently, drawing her close to his manly heart, "did you get any in your eyes?"

"Yes, my jewel," she murmured, mopping her optic with a handkerchief which she had extracted from some hiding place in her attire.

"Ah! in which of your glorious orbs reflecting the light of heaven did that Hunsdian piece of dust intrude?" he questioned fiercely.

"My right," she said, and added, "sweetheart, did you get any in your eyes?"

"Yes, my dove," he responded, while he mopped away at his eye with the same handkerchief which she had used.

"How sweet," she exclaimed, "and yours was in the right eye, too?"

"Yes, light of my life!" "Adolphus," she whispered rapturously, "do you think I could have been part of the same grain of dust?"

"I hope so," he answered fervently.

"Wouldn't it be lovely, honey?" she whispered.

"S'glorious!" he breathed.—London Ideas.

Poor Sophia's Cases.

Dr. Ronald H. Curtis, the well known zoologist of Rochester, said in a recent lecture:

"I take no stock in all these yarns about the disinterested affection of animals. An animal's affection is parasitic—your dog loves you because you feed it. Analyze these yarns about animal affection and they turn out like Sophia's case."

There was a rich old man who had an ill-natured cur named Sophia. The old maid died, leaving her fortune to her nephew, who had lived with her. I met the nephew one day and ventured to offer him my sincere sympathy. He said:

"Yes, it's very sad. And the morning after my aunt's decease, the dog Sophia also died."

"Grief, I suppose?" said I.

"No," said he, "poison."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Good Use For Them.

"My dear," said Mr. Jones as soon as she thought her husband was comfortable enough to listen to bad news without exploding. "I don't want you to be angry, because she's one of the best girls we ever had, and I don't know where we should find another, and—"

"Well, well," interrupted Mr. Jones, "what has Katie done now?"

"Before I tell you, you must remember that she is infected with the war spirit just like the rest of us—and you're an ardent patriot yourself and you shouldn't get out of temper because—"

"Heaven's sake, spring it. What did she do?"

"She scrubbed the kitchen floor today with your military brushes!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TOMATO EXPERTS.

Letter Carriers John P. Clarke and Charles A. Johnston qualify.

While the back to the garden movement is now before the public eye as never before it would not be out of the way at all to call attention to the work of Letter Carriers John P. Clarke and Charles A. Johnston of the local post office department.

Both men have become famous overnight as tomato experts. They are specializing in Ponderosa and Dwarf Champion plants which they have raised from seeds. The first mentioned variety is of the climbing kind and has to be trained on poles in the garden and Mr. Clarke, who has that sort of plants, is seriously contemplating whether he shall build a step ladder to be used in picking the fruit when it ripens. Mr. Johnston on the other hand bases his hopes of a bumper crop on the Champion and there is much rivalry between the two letter carriers as to which has the best plants. The end of the season will tell the tale.

WHY BLOSSOMS ARE COLORED.

One of the greatest advantages of modern school methods, as compared with the school methods our parents survived, is that they teach the children to observe many things which the parents have never even stopped to think about. Take the blossoms of our many beautiful flowering plants, for example. Everyone has marveled at the multitude of shapes and hues to be found in the various blossoms, but how many of us ever wondered why the flower petals are brightly colored, while the calyx and the leaves are green?

Almost everyone could guess that it was to aid the bees and butterflies in finding the honey bearing portion of the plant, but the pity is that so many of us never even thought of the problem.

Beautiful colors do more to make the world happy than any other one thing, in all probability. Their effect upon the average person may not be so great as that of beautiful music, but the colors occur so much more frequently than the music, and are available to so many more people, that music must take second place as a world benefactor.

May it not be that the glory of the blossoms' hue was meant to effect an even greater purpose than that of self propagation? I believe that it was meant to make you and me happier and the leaves were colored green to set off the beautiful blossoms, and rest the weary eye of the man.

There are many wondrous things to be learned in nature, and I am glad that my children and yours are going to know more about them than we do. With a love of nature and an understanding of many of her intricate ways, no one will ever grow despondent or faint hearted. It is the greatest preventive of suicide in the world.

Can you tell why some plants produce flowers of different shades during the same season? Did you know that the honey bees feed on only one kind of flower until they have a load ready for the hive, so as not to mix their drinks? Here is where the color of the blossom aids them most, and it also proves that bees either have a well developed sense of color, or an acute sense of smell.

Sometimes part of the flower petals are green and sometimes there are no petals at all, but in the latter case there is no need of bees transferring the pollen from flower to flower, so nature makes no effort to attract them.

Certain plants have highly colored leaves and dull hued blossoms, but most of these are tropical plants which do many strange and inexplicable things. The color in the leaves and petals is derived from small cells in which the plant foods and the oxygen are digested. There is no digestive process carried on in the petals, however, if my memory fails not, and the chlorophyll cells in the leaves do most of this work. Their color fades if they do not have access to sunlight and air, but these conditions do not seem to affect the color of the blossoms materially.

Cricket-Clergyman and Aims Dish.

Skill at cricket may help a parson to win the hearts of his flock, but it cannot often be directly helpful in his clerical duties. Rev. E. S. Carter, however, does record one case. When he went to York Minister as vicar-choral, the dean, Mr. Duncombe, did not like his playing cricket.

But one Sunday morning, as Mr. Carter took the alms dish from the choirboys who did the collecting, one of the awkward collecting bags with three wooden handles fell off Mr. Carter instinctively fielded it, catching it neatly with his right hand while he held the heavy dish steady in his left.

After the service the dean said, with a smile, "Well, Mr. Carter, I see there are some advantages in being able to play cricket."—London Daily Mail.

Mapped His Course in Life.

The monotony of the adjudicator's task in an easy competition is somewhat relieved by the unconscious humor contained in many of the writings.

One boy of eleven summers, writing on "What I Wish to Become When I Am a Man," expressed a desire for a tailor's career, then proceeded: "When I grow up I will lead a Christian life, if my evil spirits do not get too far on me. I will not gamble, nor will I go in the summer time to the races and bet all my money, and leave my wife without any money, and every week or so I will put a pound or so in the bank. I will take it out and enjoy myself, and if I have much money to take me to London I will go and see the Oxford crew and Cambridge crew racing on the Thames, and I will bet on the Oxford crew."—London Standard.

Too Often.

George Ade, in his quality of cynical bachelor, said at the Chicago Athletic club:

"I was sitting with a little girl of eight the other afternoon. She looked up from her Hans Anderson and said: 'Does m-r-a-g-e spell marriage, Mr. Ade?'"

"Yes, my child," said I.

BURGLARS BREAK INTO HIGH SCHOOL

Secured Entrance by Breaking a Window—Entered Principal Moulton's Office and Got Away With $250—Discovered This Morning.

When the janitors went to the Kingston High School to open it up for the day's session this morning, they found that some one had been there ahead of them and had broken into the office of Principal Charles K. Moulton and also into the office of Superintendent M. J. Michael. They immediately notified Mr. Michael, who hurried to the scene and notified the police and Sergeant Phinney made an investigation.

It was found that entrance had been secured by breaking a window in the manual training room and then reaching through the opening thus made and unlocking the window, throwing it up and climbing through. In the room they secured tools used by the students and used them to force the door leading out into the corridor.

Got $250 in Cash.

In Principal Moulton's room they had ransacked the desk, breaking the lock, but got only a few dollars in locker money paid in by the students who had not returned the locker key and received their money back. It is the custom when a student secures a key to a locker in the gymnasium that 25 cents is deposited which is returned when the pupil returns the key.

The burglars then turned their attention to a large closet in the room which was locked with a Yale lock. They smashed the lock and broke in to the closet removing several steel boxes on a shelf. These steel boxes were also equipped with Yale locks but were broken open with the use of a chisel, and the contents removed. It amounted to about $250.

This money was the fund collected by the high school students and which was later to have been turned over to the Red Cross. The greater part of the money taken was this fund, as only a few dollars was the amount of the locker money. The steel boxes were twisted out of shape by the burglars in breaking into them.

No Money in Other Office.

Evidently from Principal Moulton's office the thieves had gone to the office of Superintendent Michael, located further down on the same floor. The upper half of the door leading into the office is of glass and the thieves removed the moulding with the chisel and lifted the glass out and then reached through, thinking perhaps the door had a spring lock. It did not, but was equipped with a cheap lock and evidently the thieves had a skeleton key that fitted it for they swung open the door and walked in the office.

None of the desks were locked, as Superintendent Michael makes it a point to remove everything of value each day at closing time and place in the large safe. Nothing was taken from this office.

Some Time at Night.

The burglary occurred some time between 11 o'clock Thursday night and early this morning, and by breaking an entrance in through the rear the thieves ran no risk of being seen from Broadway.

What the police have discovered is not known.

An Ancient Barber's Greeting.

Old time barbers had to display more variety than their successors. A work published in 1592 describes a barber's greeting to a customer: "Sir, will you have your hair cut after the Italian manner, short and round, and then frount with the curling irons to make it look like a half moon in a mist, or like a Spaniard, long at the ears and curled like the two ends of an old perwig, or will you be Frenchified with a levelock down to your shoulders? The English cut is base, and gentlemen scorn it. Novelty is dainty. Speak the word, sir. My scissors are ready to execute your worship's will."—London Express.

The Young Idea.

In a certain school a schoolboy of tender years is said to have produced the following essay on the camel: "The camel is a sheep of the desert. It is called a bactaria because it has a hump on its back. The camel is very patient and will lie down and die without a groan, but when it is angry it gets its back up, which is called the hump. The shepherds of camels is called Arabs. When they live in towns they are called street Arabs. When the camel goes on a journey it drinks as much as it can to last for many days. Such animals are called acquiducks. Those that cannot carry enough are called inebrates."

Hill of the Poison Plant.

Close to the frontier of Nepal is the mountain of Sandook-Phu, which means in the Tibetan language "the hill of the poison plant," or acornite. This plant is so abundant and so deadly in its effects that all sheep and cattle passing over the mountain are muzzled by their drivers. An English traveler saw at its foot great heaps of discarded bamboo muzzles. Curiously enough, only those cattle that are newly imported from the plains are fatally affected. The natives believe that the sheep of the district learn to shun the youngest leaves, which are the most virulent. A more likely explanation is that they grow habituated to the drug by taking it in small quantities.

Sicily's Big Tree.

It is said the largest tree known in thickness is a partly decayed chestnut in Sicily, which is sixty feet across. Mexican cypress and the oriental plane have reached forty feet. This puts the California big tree and the baobab in the background, but the big tree is of greater bulk in combined height and girth, and the baobab is thickest in relation to height.

SULLIVAN BOYS LEAVE FARMS

Call of City or Village Life on Youth.

Would you believe that over eleven thousand boys and girls had left the farms of Sullivan county to live in cities and villages. That is what recent survey, taken by the teachers of the county, shows. The farm bureau manager, in his recent report says: "The survey shows that in Sullivan County 5,445 farmers' sons had left the farm for work rather than farm labor, and 5,858 farmers' daughters had left the farm to live in village and cities. In view of the fact there are only slightly over 4000 farms in the county, it is evident that on the average every farmer has had at least one boy or girl who has left his farm to go to the city or the village, when they should have staid on the farm."—Roscoe Review.

Gait of the Fox.

The usual gait of the fox, unlike that of the dog, is, at night at least, a walk. On such occasions he goes through the fields in an alert, stealthy manner, stepping about a foot at a time and keeping his eyes and ears open.

Bakers should not be blamed if they must increase the prices of their products. They have had a hard time making both ends meet. Wheat has jumped and jumped and jumped. ## OPEN HOUSE AT HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT

Tonight at 8 o'clock the high school will be thrown open to the public who may then enjoy a very pleasing entertainment and demonstration of class work at no expense other than their time and good will.

The seniors on the "Maroon" staff have planned a very and practical community night and through the co-operation of their friends, the faculty, they have obtained the privilege of directing the evening's gathering.

As described at some length in last evening's paper, there will be demonstration classes in manual training, printing, domestic economy and Red Cross sewing. The art room will be open for inspection and some of the recently completed designs will be in sight. The sewing department will be engaged in its Red Cross work. There will be a regular class demonstration in pie making in demonstration room No. 33. This will be conducted by a couple of students instead of by a teacher.

During the first part of the evening there will be a half hour's entertainment in the auditorium consisting of a recital and concert by soloists and orchestra. Everyone is heartily invited to attend and enjoy the entertainment which promises to be very good although planned for short notice.

It may seem odd to some that any group of students will go to this trouble and yet apparently receive no material profit for the organization which they represent. Then let it be said that there will be home made candy, strawberry shortcake and coffee for sale on the ground floor for those who may desire to be refreshed also there will be a dance in the "gym" from 8:30 until 11 o'clock. For the dance there will be charged a moderate admission of 25 cents per couple.

Part of what the seniors take in on this occasion will be turned over to the Red Cross, so that the undertaking from all view points must be considered as very public-spirited and novel and shows a desire on the part of the students for good fellowship.

Any young man wearing a maroon and white ribbon on his coat may be approached to act as a guide, for each fellow wearing this badge will go for the purpose of being of service to anyone who may desire information about the building.

CHIEF FREER DEAD AT ELLENVILLE

Vigilant Police Official and Popular Resident of Ulster Village Was Widely Known—Thorough in Devotion to Duty and Love of Dogs.

Chief of Police Isaac Freer of Ellenville died at his home there on Thursday, after a year's illness, aged 55 years. A year and a half ago Chief Freer had a severe attack of pneumonia but recovered fully from it and his latter illness was due to other causes.

Few police officers in Ulster county have enjoyed the personal popularity. As an official he was a man who possessed sagacity and "sand." He was fearless in the performance of his duty and took pride in the fact that he performed his duty without fear or favor or reward or hope thereof. His best friends were compelled to observe and respect the law as well as the stranger, and he expected that his fellow citizens would show even a deeper respect for law than other people, and took pride in the fact that Ellenville was a law-abiding community.

To readers of The Freeman for a number of years, Chief Freer was known as the owner of bloodhounds. The bloodhounds were not a myth, but many of the stories related about them were. After Warden Berry of the Napanoch Reformatory had introduced the use of bloodhounds at that institution in tracking prisoners who escaped, Chief Freer, or "Ike," as he was familiarly called from one end of Ulster county to the other, became interested in breeding them, and he possessed a kennel of the finest bred bloodhounds in New York state. While he was the owner of the owner of the hounds they were exhibited annually at the Ellenville Fair, where they attracted much attention.

Stories of their adventures which have since become famous were told about the bloodhounds, but when Chief Freer was asked about them, he only smiled cynically and called the stories "newspaper yarns." As a matter of fact, many stories that have been told of the hounds were true, and stories that were fictitious were nearly always told by the newspapers in a way that would not lead anyone astray. After he disposed of the hounds, Chief Freer took as much pride in the stories about them as he had previously taken in the hounds themselves. During the past few years, he had considered that the stories had reached too wide a circulation, and he deplored that anyone would attempt to talk intimately with him about the hounds and their adventures except his personal acquaintances.

Chief Freer was a man of modesty regarding his own ability and efficiency. When complimented on his work he invariably turned the matter into other channels by remarking with gruffness that was entirely foreign to his nature that he "only did his duty." How well he performed his duty is best known to his fellow citizens, who knew during his many years of active service that no matter how dark or stormy the night might be, Chief Freer was at his post and they placed implicit confidence in his watchfulness and his judgment.

Chief Freer was born on Oak Ridge in the town of Wawarsing and had resided in the town all his life with the exception of two or three years which he spent in Kansas. He was a son of the late Abram Freer and Anarilla VerNooy, his wife. He was engaged for a time in the meat business but had been police officer of Ellenville for the past twenty-five years. He married Miss Carrie Van Wageningen who survives him with five children, Vernie, Frederick, Floyd, Anna and Florence Freer. He is also survived by his mother; one sister, Miss Lillian Freer of Ellenville; and five brothers, Cornelius B. Freer and Archibald Freer of Ellenville, Harvey Freer and Wesley Freer of Walden, and Randolph Freer of Connecticut. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Saturday at two o'clock and will be in charge of the Rev. H. P. Hobson, rector of the Episcopal Church. The village trustees will act as pall bearers.

Misleading Book Titles.
Some book titles are distinctly misleading. Ruskin's "On the Construction of Sheepfolds" is a famous example of these, and there are others. Mr. Henry James' novel "The Lesson of the Master" has more than once been catalogued as a religious work. The same fate befell Sir Edward Hamilton's "Conversion and Redemption," a highly technical study of schemes for the redemption of the national debt. "Disloyalty; or, The Doubtful Priest," was the title originally selected by Shakespeare for the book we now know as "John Inglesant." It was chosen for fear that such a title would lead people to regard it as an attack on Roman Catholicism.—London Mail.

Consumption Among the Pilgrims.
Thirty-six of the sixty-one adult pilgrim fathers died in the first winter after landing at Plymouth. About half the crew died and only seven of the thirty-two youths and children. Dr. Edward E. Cornwall of Brooklyn deduces from an analysis of their ages and from contemporary accounts, that consumption was what caused this terrible mortality.

Lay's Saturday Sale

Economy does not mean saving or hoarding. It means spending—but spending wisely and well—it means "frugality in expenditures"—buying with judgment and discrimination—purchasing such needs as will yield the best returns, thereby eliminating waste. Buying "cheap" means because of their low cost is not true economy. It is oftentimes better to pay a few cents more and get much more in proportion. It is true economy to buy meats at this market, because our high standard-quality never varies and our prices are the lowest at which prime steaks, roasts and chops can be sold.

GET HIGHEST QUALITY MEATS AT Messinger's Saturday Sale!

We are pleased to say that industrial and commercial activities—which mean prosperity for all—are now on an upward swing, and the one force that can retard the movement is a distorted conception of what economy and conservation of resources means. The vital need is not cautious inertia, but aggressive efficiency. Waste must be eliminated, useless extravagance avoided, and the American standard of living maintained. You can still afford to buy the best of meats—such as we sell—and side-step the kinds that are mostly consigned to the garbage can. There's no economy in "cheap" meats. Let us serve you, and at the end of a month you'll be proud of your savings.

Fine Economy Chances at PLANTHABER'S SATURDAY

Economy is necessary and proper, but it is the economy which prevents the waste of food—not that which attempts to store it like the squirrel for a coming hard winter. In these days housewives should go on in their accustomed way, buying what they need as they need it, and making sure that the household supplies are made to serve as well as possible. The motto, "A clean plate," will be easily followed if groceries, provisions and meats are bought at this market. The sterling quality of our merchandise makes waste impossible, and the special week-end price-lowering points out the wisdom of doing Saturday food shopping here.

Asbestos Rope Test.
Tensile tests of asbestos rope by two Russian experimenters indicate that it is unsuitable for life lines at fires and that it is less reliable under heating and wetting than hemp rope, though its endurance may be somewhat greater. The ropes were made of a variety of asbestos from the Ural mountains. The rope was merely dried out on heating up to 200 degrees C.; then up to 500 degrees there was large loss in weight from the burning out of organic matter, and at higher temperatures up to 700 degrees the loss of combined water so loosened the fibers that the strength fell to less than 10 per cent of the original. Wetting likewise weakened the rope by separating the fibers.

Blind Points in Our Memory.
"I don't remember" is a frequent answer from the witness box when the sudden question is put. And it is often a question such as any man might be expected to answer offhand. It would be a very intelligent jury that would understand the man who could not remember where he lunched every day. But there is probably not a man on the lists who could not tell a story of his own sudden lapse of memory—when the name, the date of the event had come under the blind spot of the memory, just as the eye has that blind point which, as you turn the head and watch the dot on the paper, misses it and then regains it. London Chronicle.

She Was Right.
"I did my best to be entertaining," said the young man in a voice of sorrow.
"Did you succeed?"
"I'm afraid not. I recited Hamlet's soliloquy. She looked at me reproachfully for several seconds, and then exclaimed, 'I don't think that's very funny!'"—Washington Star.

A Use For It.
Young Hardfax—But dad, there can't be any real harm in sowing a few wild oats. Old Hardfax—Mebbe not, 'cause if you're as much of a donkey as I think you are you can eat the crop.—Chicago News.

CHAMBER DISPOSES OF MUCH BUSINESS

Proposition From New York Firm Considered Together With Requests on How to Run the Government Policy on Financing War.

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce met at headquarters Thursday and transacted considerable business. Every member of the board was present excepting Director Kearney, who was out of the city on business.

A proposition was received from a well known firm in New York city who are now unable to procure their goods from abroad and desire to make connections with some manufacturer to handle the output of its factory, keeping intact their sales force and being responsible for the salesmen, paying all their expenses and carrying on the books of their company any accounts which might be opened in the disposal of the goods which they buy from the manufacturer.

A communication was received from the New York State Food Supply Commission stating that local manufacturers canvass their men to learn how many they have in their employ that are accustomed to farm work, with the idea of releasing these men for a period of four weeks each to work on farms. It was stated that the manufacturers of Columbia county have arranged in co-operation with the County Defense Committee to close down their plants successively so as to make available to the farmers about 150 experienced men each week during harvest, also arranging to transport such of these workers to and from the farms where they will be employed. This matter was referred by the directors to the newly appointed manufacturers committee.

Communications from the Associated Manufacturers and Merchants and other organizations protesting against the excess-profits tax included in the proposed federal taxation scheme received the consideration of the board, but no definite action was taken.

Favor Taxes and Bonds.

The committee recently appointed to pass upon the questions involved in referendum No. 20 of the National Chamber of Commerce, which has to do with ways and means by which the government shall undertake to obtain funds for the conduct of the war, presented their report in substance as follows:

"We consider it proper and advisable that some of the expense incident to our becoming a party to the world war should be raised by taxation, rather than include all of these expenses in bond issues to be burdened upon the future. We believe that the people are in a mood to give freely and without murmur in taxation to help carry the enormous levies made and to be made by the nation and state and that taxation greater even than we have ever known will be in accord with the present temper of the public. We also believe that it is wrong in principle to lay any tax of a retroactive nature.

"We believe further that inasmuch as first class mail matter has been paying its own way and also helping to pay the deficiencies of other classes of mail, it would be unjust to increase the rates on that portion of the mail, but said increase should fall upon classes of mail matter which have been carried at loss to the government. We, therefore, recommend that the Chamber of Commerce vote in favor of the increased income tax, additional excess-profit tax, stamp taxes, increased custom duties and excise taxes upon articles of luxury and general use, and that the Chamber vote against increase in first-class postage rates and also in favor of the recommendation that retroactive taxes should not be imposed upon incomes and profits."

The report was signed by Arthur C. Connelly, D. G. Atkins and George Washburn.

Increase Postal Revenues.

The secretary was instructed to write our senators and congressmen expressing the approval of the Chamber of the postal bill introduced by Chairman Moon, of the house postal committee, and Senator Hardwick, of the senate postal committee, which provides for revision of our postal rates upon a plan which will increase the revenue of the department. This bill asks that periodical publishers shall pay to the department a small proportion of the cost of distributing the advertising matter in their periodicals.

The report of the special committee on the net income tax bill, consisting of J. M. Fowler, Charles Ramsey, David Burgevin, H. R. Brigham and T. A. Campbell, was presented to the board by Chairman Fowler. This committee discussed quite thoroughly the merits of the bill in question and recommended that no action on this legislation be taken unless a meeting of the general membership was called for the purpose of considering matters of taxation generally. The report was approved by the directors and the committee discharged with thanks.

To Aid Red Cross.

In response to the request of the local Red Cross Society, Secretary Canfield reported that he had attended the meeting of their executive committee on Wednesday evening, at which time the question of assisting the Ulster County Chapter in their publicity work was discussed. The directors authorized the president to appoint a committee to co-operate with the press and membership committees of the Red Cross promoting publicity.

The board of directors confirmed the appointment by President Leighton of the following committee: Market Proposition—Myron Teller, Thomas H. Edmonston, John E. Kraft, Sellig Oppenheimer, A. D. Rose. Manufacturers Committee—James S. Fuller, Louis Hoyzradt, C. E. Powell, P. B. Fitzpatrick, James F. Dwyer. Merchants Committee—E. F. MacFadden, William O'Reilly, M. H.

Palestine.

Palestine, or the Holy Land, is not in size or physical characteristics proportioned to its moral and historical position as the theater of the most momentous events in the world's history. It is less than 140 miles in length and barely forty miles in average width. Earthquakes more or less violent have been of frequent occurrence in Palestine. One of the most violent occurred in the reign of Uzziah. This was connected by Josephus with the sacrifice and punishment of that monarch. The springs of Palestine, though for the most part short lived, are remarkable for their abundance and beauty, especially those which fall into the Jordan and its lakes throughout its course.

Siren in Skirts.

Which is the most recent siren of the animal variety in history? Jacobus Noleus relates that in 1463 a siren was captured in the Zuider Zee. She was named "Norman Douglas" in "Siren Land" brought to Haarlem and, being naked, allowed herself to be clothed; she learned to eat like a Dutchman; she could spin thread and take pleasure in other maidenly occupations; she was gentle and lived to a great age. But she never spoke. The honest burghers had no knowledge of the language of the sea folk to enable them to teach her their own tongue, so she remained mute to the end of her days.

Nothing raises the price of a blessing like its removal, whereas it was its continuance which should have cost us its value.—Hannah Moore.

NEWBURGH GREETSS JOFFRE AND STAFF

Governor Whitman Makes Address of Welcome to Distinguished Frenchmen Who Leave for West Point After Visiting Washington's Headquarters.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Newburgh, N. Y., May 11.—Marshal Joffre and his staff, accompanied by a number of invited guests and escorts, arrived in Newburgh shortly before noon today. They were taken directly to the old Washington headquarters where Governor Whitman and members of the legislature welcomed them in behalf of the state.

The distinguished guests were taken for a tour of interesting points in the vicinity and were dined by Newburgh officials.

They will go to West Point this afternoon for a public reception and review of the troops will be taken and they will reach New York on the return trip shortly before 6 p. m.

Governor Whitman made a brief speech of welcome, in which he said:

"It is singularly fitting that New York state should first bid welcome to our visitors from the French republic at Washington's military home in Newburgh. This place, peculiarly precious to Americans, is not without French associations and memories. Here, giving aid and comfort, counsel and support to the leader of our armies lived for many weeks the great son of France—Lafayette, and as we recall the events of those dark days of struggle and privation we realize that Americans and Frenchmen have been allies before."

"Three peoples were represented in the revolutionary war—English, French and Americans. Armies sent by a stupid and stubborn monarch did not prevail against the spirit and the characters of a people who themselves drew their inspiration and their strength from their ancestors over the sea and who in themselves embodied and represented that which was greatest and best in England's history and England's tradition far more truly than did the English king who sent his soldiers here."

"Again, the representatives of these three peoples meet on American soil. Again, the French and the Americans are found in Washington's headquarters. Again a stubborn and arrogant ruler has plunged his nation into war. Despotism has gone mad, has filled the world with terror. But the Frenchman and the Englishman and the American are not divided now. The nation whose existence was made possible by our French ally over a century ago composed today as it is, of people from all lands, speaking many languages, with natural affections, some of them for ancestral homes over the sea, is united in devotion and loyalty to the flag and all for which it stands."

"We realize that our allies in Europe are fighting for civilization, as truly as did our fathers fight here; that the struggle is a struggle for humanity today, as truly as it was in 1776, and that no price is too high to pay, no sacrifice too great to make for the holy cause for which the sons of Great Britain and France and Russia are offering their all."

"Welcome is an easy word to say and I realize that to those whose lives have been what yours have been during the last months and years words may seem like empty things. It is a privilege, however, for use to express the admiration, affection and the reverence that our people have grown to possess for the men and for the women of France. It is perhaps impossible for us to realize all that you have been called upon to endure or to appreciate all you have suffered as you have made for your country a place in the hearts and affections of mankind which no other nation has ever held."

"I know that I express the honest sentiment of the people of the state of New York. God save, and God bless the republic of France."

A Curiosity About Eclipses.

The average number of total and partial eclipses in any one year is four, the maximum seven and the minimum two. There is nothing really peculiar in this except the fact that where only two occur they are always both of the sun. There are more solar than lunar eclipses, but the sun, being so much larger than the earth or moon, the shadow terminates at a point and is visible only along a narrow track, while the lunar observation is frequently visible over half a continent.

STREET OILING HAS BEEN RESUMED

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

Workmen at the F. I. A. T. automobile factory, just north of Poughkeepsie, are working day and night on a rush order for 400 motors and chassis which has been placed with the F. I. A. T. factory in this country by the Russian government. Already nearly seventy of these machines have been shipped.

The Brown Auto Supply Company of Clinton Avenue has completed the installation of a large gasoline tank in front of their store and installed a modern pump station. The station is supplied from two pumps, one located on either side of the street so that cars going in both directions may secure gas without turning around to stop on the right hand side of the street.

The bill introduced in the legislature for the purpose of doubling the present tax upon pleasure automobiles has been defeated through the efforts of the various automobile clubs and the New York State Automobile Association. The bill had caused a great deal of anxiety to owners of automobiles who are at present paying a fairly large tax upon their cars. The bill was killed in the senate and never got to the assembly. This was due to the activity taken in the matter by the Automobile Clubs of the A. A. A. Through the defeat of the bill the motorists of the state have been saved millions of dollars. At the present time even the smallest automobile pays a tax annually of $5 and the larger cars in accordance with their power. The bill as introduced called for a doubling of this tax.

BASEBALL GAME TAME

Too Much Candy in National Pastime, Says Gleason.

Famous Star of Bygone Days Reminded by Honus Wagner of Time-Plate Players Cut His Shoes With Their Sharp Spikes.

"There's too much candy in the game now,"

With a disgusting shrug of his shoulders, the indomitable Kid Gleason thus gave vent to his feelings concerning a sport that no longer carries the aggressive trend of the nineties.

Gleason, who was one of the scrappiest players that ever pushed a runner off a base, has reached the fiftieth milestone in his life, but move about with a Kilbane step, and his eye is just as true as Tris Speaker's.

The famous star of bygone days went to a hotel in Philadelphia one night last summer to see his old friend Jimmie Callahan. Wagner and Cal joined the conference. After discussing current events for a few hours, Honus turned and said to Gleason: "Say, Kid, you remember the day Charlie and the boys cut your shoes off in Philadelphia?"

Gleason's eye took on a retrospective gaze as his mind flitted back a dozen or fifteen years, but he made no reply to Wagner's remark. None was necessary, however, as his face indicated that he had recalled the incident vividly. Gleason left a few minutes after, and Honus remarked:

"We started a series here, and Fred and some of the rest of the speeders had the Kid almost barefooted before the fifth inning arrived, but every one of us who reached second during the remainder of the series carried a Gleason-brand trade mark."

"After the Kid's second shoe started to unravel from the spike wounds he got real sore. Charlie was on first, and a grounder was hit to short. A force play was started, but Gleason deliberately took his foot off the bag and sunk the ball in between two of Charlie's ribs. They had to call time while the ball was yanked from Fred's hide. The Pittsburgh team was glad when that series was finished."

"Gleason could get more men stealing than any other second baseman I have ever seen. If he had the ball as soon as the runner the latter was never safe, as is usually the case now. The Kid had a slick way of rolling the runner off the bag, and his trick fooled most of the umpires."

"Guess Kid is right," concluded Honus. "The players are eating candy now instead of plug tobacco."

SLOW-BALLERS ARE THROUGH

Mystery to Layman How Slow-Ball Pitchers Get By—Jack Warhop Lasted Seven Years.

What has become of the slow-ball pitchers? Nap Rucker, who pitched the slowest ball that ever crept up on a big league batsman, has retired from the service of the Brooklyn club, while Jean Dubuc, another rather famous slow-baller, is also through with the Detroit Tigers after some six years of splendid service.

To the layman it is often a mystery how these slow-ball pitchers could get by. Reporters, some of whom had played ball at college and elsewhere, would sit behind Jack Warhop's service, and their hands would itch for a bat so they could stick one of Hop's benders into the Harlem river. But Warhop, though never a star, lasted in the big league seven years. And Jack never had any luck, or he would have been rated much higher as a pitcher than was the case.

MAINTAINS OLD MEN'S HOME

Average Age of Players on Bill Clymer's Champions Is 28—Purdue Accused of Fudging.

After one studies the age statistics of the Louisville team the joke about Minneapolis being an old men's home falls flat. The average age of Bill Clymer's champions is twenty-eight. The youngest player is Billers, aged twenty, and the oldest is Hub Furdine, who admits to being thirty-four, while some he has fudged a couple of years. Bahe and Daniels also are thirty-four, but were born later in the year than Hub.

GRAND JURY FINDS TEN INDICTMENTS

Six of These Are Sealed and Three Others Are Based on Austrian Shooting Affray at Cedarcliffe—Judge Howard Adjourns for Term.

At 12:30 o'clock the grand jury reported handing down six sealed indictments, discharging on man and finding indictments against four other men.

Judson Decker, who has been held in jail on a charge of adultery, was discharged from custody.

Daniel Carney, against whom an indictment charging him with rape in the second degree and assault in the second degree was found by the grand jury, through his attorney Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., pleaded not guilty to both charges. The assault is alleged to have taken place this spring when he assaulted Sergeant Phinney who was in the act of making an arrest.

Joseph Kurov and Victor Rosick, two of the Austrians who it is alleged started a mix-up at Cedarcliffe on April 6, 1917, were indicted for assault in the first degree. They pleaded not guilty to the charge through their attorney, Judge Brinnier.

Another indictment against Kurov was found charging him with carrying a gun without a license on April 6, 1917.

An indictment against Rosick for the same charge was found. Both pleaded not guilty through Judge Brinnier who also represented the office of Brinnier & Canfield.

Two indictments were found against Joseph Ferro, one charging him with assault in the second degree committed upon a girl living on Catherine street, this city, and another charge for carrying firearms without a license on April 8, 1917. He also pleaded not guilty through Judge Brinnier.

Court Thanks Jurors.

As there was no other work for the grand jury Justice Howard after thanking the members for their faithful services excused them from further duty. Judge Howard stated that the community was unusually grateful for the services rendered by the body at this busy time of year and especially in view of the fact that many farmers were members of the jury.

A Saugerties Case Up.

An inquest was taken in the action brought by Frank G. Phelps against George E. Armstrong, an action to recover on a contract. F. E. W. Darnew of Saugerties, appeared for the plaintiff and judgment was directed in the sum of $97.25. The action was to recover on a car of brand.

Court then adjourned for the term.

Securing an Audience.

"And the audience, my boy, were glad to their seats," said the delighted actor.

"That certainly was a neat way of keeping them there," said the critic—Chicago Herald.

NEW CALL FINDS RED CROSS READY

President Wilson Names War Council and Urges All Who Can Contribute to Alleviation of Suffering and Distress to Give to Red Cross.

A lengthy telegram was received today by Mrs. M. E. Fessenden, secretary of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross, from National Headquarters at Washington in which is set forth President Wilson's action appointing a war council composed of Henry R. Davison, chairman; Charles D. Norton, G. M. P. Murphy, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Edward N. Hurley, with William H. Taft, chairman, and Elliot Wadsworth, vice chairman of the executive committee as ex officio members.

The president's statement declares that to the war council will be entrusted the duty of responding to the extraordinary demands which the war will make upon the Red Cross, both in the field and in civilian relief. The greatest efficiency and energy to the relief work, the president says, will be to concentrate it in the hands of a single experienced organization recognized by law and by international convention, as the public instrumentality for such purpose and he calls upon all to contribute to the Red Cross.

As a result, the Red Cross organization has decided to at once prepare to meet the pressing calls from Europe and the emergencies soon to confront us at home. Accordingly, each chapter hereafter will retain for its local needs not in excess of 25 per cent of the total raised by it. The war council, wherever possible, will authorize the purchase of supplies for the chapters in their respective communities.

MEETING FOR BOY SCOUTS.

All the preliminary work incidental to the campaign has been accomplished and the meeting this evening will be in the nature of a get-together one. The members of the various organizations of Kingston are requested to be present.

E. H. Bogart will act as toastmaster and speakers of unusual ability will be present and speak a word for the boys. After the meeting tonight a complete list of the names of the men who will form the organizing committee will be published.

The Pennant War.

The Pennant war was a humorous name given to an early boundary dispute between the colonies of Connecticut and Pennsylvania. By the original charter granted to William Penn the northern boundary of Pennsylvania was fixed at latitude 43 degrees north. Connecticut claimed as far south as 41 degrees, and both colonies made settlements in the disputed territory. There were many clashes that came near to actual fighting, but finally congress and the courts settled the dispute in favor of Pennsylvania.

The most striking feature in the Biblical notices of the horse is the exclusive application of it to warlike operations and not to ordinary locomotion or to agriculture.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Gordon Reel and Mrs. Charles M. Preston are spending several days in Washington, D. C., where they have been joined by Mrs. Preston's son and daughter, Mrs. Lovatt. While in Washington, Mrs. Reel and Mrs. Preston expect to attend the dedication of the new Red Cross building, going as representatives of the Ulster County Chapter.

Thursday evening a most enjoyable time was spent at the home of Miss Marion Hampton, Clifton avenue, the occasion being a miscellaneous show in honor of Miss Pansy Reynolds, whose coming marriage to Robert J. Hudler has been announced. The room was beautifully decorated, the color scheme being green and white. After many selections rendered on the Victrola dainty refreshments were served, the color scheme being carried throughout in green and white. The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts from those present, who were Miss Gertrude Smith, Miss Emma Marks, Miss Lulu Hudler, Miss Margaret Weber, Miss Mary Hudler, Miss Anita Nickerson, Miss Grace Hudler and Miss Rachel Hudler.

Slater-Landers.

The wedding of Joseph Slater and Miss Lulu H. Landers of New Paltz took place at All Saints' rectory, Rosendale, on Thursday, May 10, at 1 p. m., the Rev. James G. Cameron, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, officiating.

Mesopotamia.

The Mesopotamia of the Bible, "Syr between the two rivers," the Tigris and the Euphrates, is a tract nearly 700 miles long and from 20 to 250 miles broad. Mesopotamia is first heard of in Scripture as the country where Nabor and his family settled after quitting Ur of the Chaldees (Genesis xiv, 10).

"I really thought that manicure girl was interested in me."
"What disillusioned you?"
"The matter of fact manner in which she called out 'Next!'"—Kansas City Journal.

Auction by Candle.

Sale by candle, a method of auction that was once very common through England and Scotland, still survives in the north of England.

A "judge" and his secretary take their seats at the appointed place, attended by a crier and a servant provided with a box of tiny candles, each of which will burn one minute. At a given signal a candle is lighted, and the bidding for the object offered begins. At each offer from a would be purchaser the burning candle is extinguished and a new one lighted, and the article is disposed of only when a candle burns itself out are a fresh bid has been announced by the crier.

Fortunes in Picture Frames.

The finest and costliest frame ever made for a picture is that which incloses the "Virgin and Child" in Milan cathedral. It is made of hammered gold, with an inner molding of lapis lazuli. The corners of this valuable frame have hearts designed in large pearls and precious stones. Some idea of its value may be gained when it is stated that the frame is eight feet long and six feet wide. Its estimated worth is $125,000. One of the pictures in the Vatican at Rome is in a frame studded with jewels. The picture is a valuable one, but the frame nearly equals the value of the painting.—London Telegraph.

The River of Life.

All life is lived in running liquid water. If the flow ceases the life stagnates and shortly dies.

The rule is absolute. The driest seeds, or spores of microbes, or those most minute objects that no microscope can reveal and no filter retain, may survive, with all their malignant possibilities, for months or even decades of years. But it is only when they get into a stream of water that they can really live and multiply.—Dr. Saleeby, in the Youth's Companion.

Chippendale furniture was made in England. The original pieces were made by Thomas Chippendale about 1750-70. Genuine Chippendale brings high prices, but there is little to be had.

War Reduces Insanity.

War as a palliative of insanity is a theory unfamiliar to most people, but we have no reason to doubt the conclusions of Dr. Oswald of Glasgow lunatic asylum on the matter. One phase of the subject is instructive and significant. This is "the removal of the powerful effect of poverty on the mind and its replacement by the higher standard of living and remunerative employment." Poverty and unemployment are thus by medical testimony more fertile causes of insanity than war.—London Globe.

One likes eternally to look young and to feel that his neighbors think he looks young. His mirror is his father confessor and this is the justifiable vanity of mankind just as it is of womankind. ## FLAG RAISING.

Interesting Program by West Shore

R. R. Men Arranged.

As told in Thursday's Freeman the men at the West Shore car shops in the north yard are planning for a big time Saturday afternoon when they will erect an 85 foot flag pole and unfurl a handsome new flag. The program which will start at 1 o'clock that afternoon, will be opened by prayer by the Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis, followed by addresses by E. C. Patton, D. G. C. P., and C. E. Carson, D. M. C. F., and the Rev. G. M. Cranstoun. The Boy Scouts will be in attendance and the public is invited.

How Baraboo Got Its Name.

Indiana gave Baraboo its name, but the word is not an Indian one. Baraboo or Barabault was the name of an old Canadian French trader who at the age of seventeen sought the wilderness of Wisconsin to secure pelts for the Hudson Bay company and later for the American Fur company. He established a post where the town of Baraboo now stands. Being the first white man in those parts, the Indians named the place after him, but as they had not had the advantage of a French education they could not get the pronunciation of the name nearer than Baraboo, and Baraboo it remains to this day.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"What do you think about the proposition of sending an army over to France?" asked the friend of the street corner politician.

"I am in favor of it," replied the politician.

"I am not," returned the friend. "Why?" asked the politician.

"Why should we send our boys over to France to be shot down?" argued the friend. "Germany has not declared war on us."

"She has only been sinking our ships for the past two years," replied the politician heatedly, "and yet you think that is not declaring war. I suppose if a man sneaked up behind you and hit you over the head with a club you would not try to get even, would you?"

"That's different," argued the friend.

"That is just what Germany is, and has been doing," continued the politician, "and yet some people don't seem to realize that we are at war with Germany."

"Well she has not invaded us," argued the friend.

"That is not because she would not like to," replied the politician, "and the quicker you and many others wake up to the fact that Germany must be crushed the better off you will be."

"But I can't see why we should send an army to France, though," persisted the friend.

"That is because you are narrow minded," retorted the politician. "You must remember that unless Germany is crushed it will mean that war will drag on for years maybe, and I am in favor of making it short and swift, and if sending an army to France will aid in crushing Germany quickly I say send the army."

"Another thing," continued the politician, "now that we have declared war we should be ashamed to be willing to pay the Allies with money and food to fight our battles."

"We are not though," argued the friend.

"That's just what we will be doing if we don't assist by sending men to the front," replied the politician, "for you must remember that at the present time the only thing that stands between our nation and Germany is the English fleet and the armies of the Allies."

"What do you mean?" queried the friend.

"I mean that if Germany's warships were not bottled up by the English fleet that we would wake up some morning to find New York being bombarded by the Germans."

"That's too far fetched," argued the friend.

"It is not and you know it is not," retorted the politician, "and another thing you should realize and that is that we should do everything in our power to assist the Allies to wipe out Germany."

"No use getting hot over it," said the friend.

"That's the trouble with many of us," replied the politician, "we won't get hot over Germany until some big calamity overtakes this country and Germany commits an act like blowing up several of our battleships, and then maybe the country would be roused as at the time the Maine was blown up by the Spanish."

"It's a pretty serious condition," continued the politician, "for our people, for many of them don't seem to realize the danger that lies before us, and the need of whipping Germany and doing it quickly."

"Well, Germany can't whip the United States," soothed the friend.

"I know that," replied the politician, "and I am equally positive that with a force of men over in France Germany would soon be swept back onto her own soil."

"That might be true," agreed the friend.

"Now is the time for our country to act," continued the politician, "and it is up to every true blue American to adopt the slogan crush Germany now."

Pausing a second the politician continued, "Germany at the present time has an idea she can lick the world and the quicker that idea is knocked down her throat the better it will be. The only salvation of the world is the complete wiping out of the military power that Germany holds."

"Sounds reasonable," confessed the friend.

"Sounds reasonable," retorted the politician, "it is reasonable and the quicker you and many like you awake to that fact the quicker this war will end."

"Changing the subject," said the friend, "what is this free verse I read about?"

"That's an easy one," replied the politician, with a smile. "Shoot," responded the friend. "Well for instance take the ice question," replied the politician, "a free verse artist would treat it like this: 'Last winter there was plenty of ice. It was out and housed. Warmer weather is coming soon. On account of the war, The price of ice will be advanced. There is no ice shortage. But everything jumps in price, even coal. So why sell ice as cheap as last year?'"

"So that is what you call free verse?" asked the friend.

"It's about the only thing you will get free nowadays," replied the politician, "and even the man who writes that kind of stuff expects to get paid for it. What do you think of it?"

"Well," replied the friend, judiciously, "I will confess that there is more truth than poetry in it."

"And I admit it," retorted the politician.

ANY PLAYER CAN BUNT

Athletes Overlook Opportunities to Improve Themselves.

Bunting is One Department of Game That Requires Consistent Practice, Whether Free Swinging or Scientific Form.

Major league baseball players who spoil the chances for victory in championship games through failure to bunt correctly can blame themselves in nine cases out of ten, thus saith a wise manager like John McGraw.

A month in the South ought to suffice to turn a doubtful bunter into a sure man if the player takes advantage of his opportunities, but the average player fails to show a disposition to correct the fault during the training period and bunting practically is considered a hardship by most athletes.

One would think that a player would be sufficiently interested in his own welfare to practice bunting for ten or fifteen minutes every day, but as a rule the average player wants to get up to the plate and see how far and how hard he can hit.

John McGraw remarked one day that the members of the famous Oricle team practiced all kinds of hitting for hours every day. The aggressive members of that team were not satisfied with the regular hitting practice which precedes every game. They went to the park every morning and became skillful through excessive practice. Willie Keeler, the noted bunter, was among this crowd, and to these sessions he owed part of his skill. The team bunting average for one season was over the 300 mark.

"Ball players think they are becoming proficient in hitting with twenty minutes practice each day," said McGraw. "They surely have the mistaken idea. The Baltimore club members used up the energies of every kid around the park for pitching duty, and when they tired the groundskeeper sent out for more. If there is one department of the game that requires consistent practice, it is bunting, whether it be free swinging or the scientific form."

ACKNOWLEDGES HE IS WILD
Larry Cheney of Brooklyn Dodgers Makes Capital of Fact—Has "Stuff" on the Ball.

Larry Cheney, the Brooklyn pitcher, does not deny that he is wild; on the contrary, he acknowledges it. The great spittaller has been in the league five years and makes capital of the fact that in that time he has pitched two games wherein he gave no bases on balls. One was with Chicago in 1912, the other last year with the Superbas. Larry is at his best when he is wild, for he then has the stuff on the ball, and while he keeps the fans guessing with his many passes, the opposing team rarely gets the timely hits. Larry gave 105 bases on balls in 41 games last year, made 15 wild pitches, and hit 10 batters, but he allowed only 178 hits and 91 runs. He won 18 out of 30 games. Flouting on his early season form, Larry ought to better this record in 1917. He is in fine shape, and is quite as wild as ever.

HAS QUALITIES OF LULLABY
Baseball is Balancing Medium, Says Major General Wood—Goes to Sleep During Game.

Major Gen. Leonard Wood believes in baseball as a balancing medium in these days. He is satisfied, too, that it has the soothing qualities of a lullaby.

He went to the Polo grounds in New York on the opening day to lend his approval to the sport and to throw out the first ball. That over, he sat down in a reasonably uncomfortable chair and fell asleep.

Tired nature simply was demanding toll, and the nap was a tribute to his undragging zeal and long hours of work in the previous two or three weeks.

The hours at his desk and the later hours of speech-making robbed him of needed rest, but he was able to make up three innings of it in a box at the Polo grounds, as the Yankees went down to defeat before the Boston Red Sox.

BURGLARS BREAK INTO HIGH SCHOOL

Secured Entrance by Breaking Window—Entered Principal Moulton's Office and Got Away With $250—Discovered This Morning.

When the janitors went to the Kingston High School to open it up for the day's session this morning, they found that some one had been there ahead of them and had broken into the office of Principal Charles A. Moulton and also into the office of Superintendent M. J. Michael. They immediately notified Mr. Michael, who hurried to the scene and notified the police and Sergeant Phinney made an investigation.

It was found that entrance had been secured by breaking a window in the manual training room and then reaching through the opening thus made and unhooking the window throwing it up and climbing through. In the room they secured tools used by the students and used them to force the door leading out into the corridor.

Got $250 in Cash.

In Principal Moulton's room they had ransacked the desk, breaking the lock but got only a few dollars in locker money paid in by the students who had not returned the locker key and received their money back. It is the custom when a student secures a key to a locker in the gymnasium that 75 cents is deposited which is returned when the pupil returns the key.

The burglars then turned their attention to a large closet in the room which was locked with a Yale lock. They smashed the lock and broke in to the closet removing several steel boxes on a shelf. These steel boxes were also equipped with Yale locks but were broken open with the use of a chisel and the contents removed. It amounted to about $250.

This money was the fund collected by the high school students and which was later to have been turned over to the Red Cross. The greater part of the money taken was this fund as only a few dollars was the amount of the locker money. The steel boxes were this set out of shape by the burglars in breaking into them.

No Money in Other Office

Evidently from Principal Moulton's office the thieves had gone to the office of Superintendent Michael located further down on the same floor. The upper half of the door leading into the office is of glass and the thieves removed the moulding with the chisel and lifted the glass out and then reached through thinking perhaps the door had a spring lock. It did not but was equipped with a cheap lock and when the thieves saw a skeleton key that fitted for their swing open the door and walked in the office.

None of the 3 were locked as Superintendent Michael makes it a point to remove everything of value each day at closing time and place in the large safe. Nothing was taken from this office.

Some Time at Night

The burglary occurred some time between 11 o'clock Thursday night and early this morning and by breaking an entrance in through the rear the thieves ran no risk of being seen from Broadway.

What the police have discovered is not known.

An Ancient Barber's Greeting.

Old time barbers had to display more variety than their successors. A work published in 1882 describes a barber's greeting to a customer: 'Sir will you have your hair cut after the Italian manner short and round and then frout with the curling iron to make it look like a half moon in a mist or a S. round long at the ears and curled like the two ends of an old pig wig or will you be Frenchified with a jowllock down to your shoulders? The hair cut is base and gentlemen scorn it. No city is daintier. Speak the word sir. Mr. scissors are ready to execute your worship's will. —London Express.

The Young Idea

In a certain school a schoolboy of tender years is said to have produced the following essay on the camel. The camel is a sheep of the desert. It is called a lackteria because it has a hump on its back. The camel is very patient and will lie down and lie without a groin but when it is angry it gets its back up which is called the hump. The shepherds of camels are called Arals. When they live in towns they are called street Arabs. When the camel goes on a journey it drinks as much as it can to last for many days. Such animals are called acquiducks. Those that can not carry enough are called ineptities.

Hill of the Poison Plant

Close to the frontier of Nepal is the mountain of Sandool Ihu which means in the Tibetan language the hill of the poison plant or acacia. This plant is so abundant and so dead in its effects that all sheep and cattle passing over the mountain are muzzled by their drivers. An English traveler saw at its foot great heaps of discarded lamb and muzzles. Curiously enough only those cattle that are new to the mountain are muzzled. The natives believe that the sheep of the district learn to shun the poisonous leaves which are the most virulent. A more likely explanation is that they grow habituated to the drug by eating it in small quantities.

Sicily a Big Tree

It is said the largest tree known in Sicily is a partly decayed chestnut in Sicily which is sixty feet across. Mexican cypress and the oriental plane have reached for a foot. This puts the California big tree and the baobab in the background but the big tree is of greater bulk in combined height and girth and the baobab is thickest in relation to height.

SULLIVAN BOYS HAVE FARMS

Call of City in Village. Live on South

Would you believe that over eleven thousand boys and girls had left the farms of Sullivan county to live in cities and villages. That is what recent survey taken by the teachers of the county shows. The farm bureau manager in his recent report says. The survey shows that in Sullivan County a 44 farmers sons had left the farm for work in their than farm labor and 588 farmers daughters had left the farm to live in village and cities. In view of the fact that there are only slightly over 1000 farms in the county it is evident that on the average every farmer has had at least one boy or girl who has left his farm to go to the city or the village when they should have stood on the farm. —Roscoe Review stories of their adventures which he later became famous were told about the bloodhounds but when Capt. Frier was asked about them he only smiled ironically and called the stories newspaper yarns. As a matter of fact, the stories that we have heard about the hounds were true and stories that are fictitious are nearly always told by the newspaper in a way that would not lead to any harm. After he disposed of the hound's Chief Frier took as much interest in the stories about them as he had ever taken in the hounds themselves. During the past year he had considered that the hounds had become too wild a creation and he deplored that anyone would attempt to talk intimately with him about the hounds and their qualities except his personal assistant.

CHAMBER DISPOSES OF MUCH BUSINESS

Proposition From New York Firm Considered Together With Requests on How to Run the Government Policy on Financing War.

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce met at headquarters Thursday and transacted considerable business. Every member of the board was present excepting Director Kearney, who was out of the city on business.

A proposition was received from a well known firm in New York city who are now unable to procure their goods from abroad and desire to make connections with some manufacturer to handle the output of its factory, keeping intact their sales force and being responsible for the salesmen, paying all their expenses and carrying on the books of their company any accounts which might be opened in the disposal of the goods which they buy from the manufacturer.

A communication was received from the New York State Food Supply Commission suggesting that local manufacturers canvass their men to learn how many they have in their employ that are accustomed to farm work, with the idea of releasing these men for a period of four weeks each to work on farms. It was stated that the manufacturers of Columbia county have arranged in co-operation with the County Defense Committee to close down their plants successively so as to make available to the farmers about 150 experienced men each week during harvest, also arranging to transport such of these workers as and from the farms where they will be employed. This matter was referred by the directors to the newly appointed manufacturers committee.

Communications from the Associated Manufacturers and Merchants and other organizations protesting against the excess-profits tax included in the proposed federal taxation scheme received, the consideration of the board, but no definite action was taken.

Favor Taxes and Bonds.

The committee recently appointed to pass upon the questions involved in referendum No. 20 of the National Chamber of Commerce, which has to do with ways and means by which the government shall undertake to obtain funds for the conduct of the war, presented their report in substance as follows:

"We consider it proper and advisable that some of the expense incident to our becoming a party to the world war should be raised by taxation, rather than include all of these expenses in bond issues to be burdened upon the future. We believe that the people are in a mood to give freely and without murmur in taxation to help carry the enormous burden made and to be made by the nation and state and that taxation greater even than we have ever known will be in accord with the present temper of the public. We are convinced that it is wrong in principle to lay any tax of a retroactive nature.

"We believe further that inasmuch as first class mail matter has been paying its own way and also helping to pay the deficiencies of other classes of mail, it would be unjust to increase the rates on that portion of the mail, but said increase should fall upon classes of small matter which have been carried at loss to the government. We therefore, recommend that the Chamber of Commerce vote in favor of the increased income tax, additional excess-profit tax stamp taxes, increased custom duties and excise taxes upon articles of luxury and general use, and that the Chamber vote against increase in first-class postage rates and also in favor of the recommendation that retroactive taxes should not be imposed upon incomes and profits."

The report was signed by Arthur C. Connelly, D. G. Atkins and George Washburn.

Increase Postal Revenues.
The secretary was instructed to write our senators and congressmen expressing the approval of the Chamber of the postal bill introduced by Chairman Moon, of the house postal committee, and Senator Birdwick, of the senate postal committee, which provides for revision of our postal rates upon a plan which will increase the revenue of the department. This bill asks that periodical publishers shall pay to the department a small proportion of the cost of distributing the advertising matter in their periodicals.

The report of the special committee on the net income tax bill, consisting of T. M. Fowler, Charles Ramsey, David Burgess, H. R. Brigham and T. A. Campbell, was presented to the board by Chairman Fowler. This committee discussed quite thoroughly the merits of the bill in question and recommended that no action on this legislation be taken unless a meeting of the general membership was called for the purpose of considering matters of taxation generally. The report was approved by the directors and the committee discharged with thanks.

To Aid Red Cross.

In response to the request of the local Red Cross Society, Secretary Canfield reported that he had attended the meeting of their executive committee on Wednesday evening, at which time the question of assisting the Ulster County Chapter in their publicity work was discussed. The directors authorized the president to appoint a committee to co-operate with the press and membership committees of the Red Cross promoting publicity.

The board of directors confirmed the appointment by President Leighton of the following committee:

Market Proposition—Myron Teller, Thomas H. Edmonston, John E. Kraft, Selig Oppenheimer, A. D. Rose.

Manufacturers Committee—James S. Fuller, Louis Haysradt, C. E. Powell, P. B. Fitzpatrick, James F. Dwyer.

Merchants Committee—E. F. MacFadden, William O'Reilly, M. H.

Palestine.

Palestine, or the Holy Land, is not in size or physical characteristics proportioned to its moral and historical position as the theater of the most momentous events in the world's history. It is less than 140 miles in length and barely forty miles in average width. Earthquakes more or less violent have been of frequent occurrence in Palestine. One of the most violent occurred in the reign of Uzziah. This was connected by Josephus with the sacrifice and punishment of that monarch. The springs of Palestine, though for the most part short lived, are remarkable for their abundance and beauty, especially those which fall into the Jordan and its lakes throughout its course.

NEWBURGH GREETED JOFFRE AND STAFF

Governor Whitman Makes Address of Welcome to Distinguished Frenchmen Who Leave for West Point After Visiting Washington Headquarters

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Newburgh, N. Y., May 11.—Major Joffre and his staff accompanied by a number of invited guests and escorts arrived in Newburgh shortly before noon today. They were taken directly to the old Washington headquarters where Governor Whitman and members of the legislature welcomed them in behalf of the state.

The distinguished guests were taken for a tour of interesting points in the vicinity and were dined by Newburgh officials.

They will go to West Point this afternoon for a public reception and review of the troops will be taken and they will reach New York on the return trip shortly before 4 p. m.

Governor Whitman made a brief speech of welcome in which he said:

It is a regular fitting that New York state should first bid welcome to our visitors from the French republic at Washington's military home in Newburgh. This place peculiarly precious to Americans is not without a French association and memories. Here giving aid and comfort counsel and support to the leader of our armies in the revolutionary war—English French and Americans. And here we recall the events of the dark days of struggle and privation we realize that Americans and Frenchmen have been allies before.

Three peoples were represented in the revolutionary war—English French and Americans. And here we recall the events of the dark days of struggle and privation we realize that Americans and Frenchmen have been allies before.

A Curiosity About Eclipses
The average number of total and partial eclipses in any one year is four the maximum seven and the minimum two. There is nothing really peculiar in this except the fact that where only two occur they are always both of the sun. There are more solar than lunar eclipses but the sun being so much larger than the earth or moon the shadow terminates at a point and is visible only along a narrow track while the lunar observation is frequently visible over half a continent.

The bill introduced in the legislature for the purpose of doubling the present tax upon pleasure automobiles has been defeated through the efforts of the various automobile clubs and the New York State Automobile Association. The bill had caused a great deal of anxiety to owners of automobiles who are at present paying a fairly large tax upon their cars. The bill was killed in the senate and never got to the assembly. This was due to the activity taken in the matter by the Automobile Clubs of the A. A. A. through the defeat of the bill the motorists of the state have been saved millions of dollars. At the present time even the smallest automobile pays a tax amounting to $5 and the larger cars in accordance with their power. The bill as introduced called for a doubling of this tax.

BASEBALL GAME TAME

Too Much Candy in National Pastime, Says Gleason.

Famous Star of Bygone Days Reminded by Honus Wagner of Time-Players Cut His Shoes With Their Sharp Spikes.

"There's too much candy in the game now,"

With a diagnosing shrewd of his shoulder, the indomitable Kid Gleason thus gave vent to his feelings concerning a sport that no longer carries the aggressive trend of the nineties.

Gleason, who was one of the scrappiest players that ever pushed a runner off a base, has reached the fiftieth milestone in his life, but more about with a Kluge shoe, and his eye is just as true as Tris Speaker's.

The famous star of bygone days went to a hotel in Philadelphia one night last summer to see his old friend Jimmie Callahan. Wagner and Cal were talking when the tabasco Kid joined the conference. After discussing current events for a few hours, Honus turned and said to Gleason:

"Say, Kid, you remember the day Clark and the boys cut your shoes off in Philadelphia?"

Gleason's eye took on a retrospective gaze as his mind flitted back a dozen or fifteen years, but he made no reply to Wag's remark. None was necessary, however, as his face indicated that he had recalled the incident vividly. Gleason left a few minutes after, and Honus remarked:

"We started a series here, and Fred and some of the rest of the speedsters had the Kid almost barefooted before the fifth inning arrived, but every one of us who reached second during the remainder of the series carried a Gleason-brand trade mark."

"After the Kid's second shoe started to unravel from the spike wounds he got real sore. Clark was on first, and a grounder was hit to short. A force play was started, but Gleason deliberately took his foot off the bag and sunk the ball in between two of Clark's ribs. They had to call time while the ball was yanked from Fred's hide. The Pittsburgh team was glad when that series was finished."

"Gleason could get more men stealing than any other second baseman I have ever seen. If he had the ball as soon as the runner the latter was never safe, as is usually the case now. The Kid had a trick way of rolling the runner off the bag, and his trick fooled most of the umpires."

"Guess Kid is right," concluded Honus. "The players are eating candy now instead of plug tobacco."

SLOW-BALLERS ARE THROUGH

Mystery to Layman How Slow-Ball Pitchers Get By—Jack Warhop Lasted Seven Years.

What has become of the slow-ball pitchers? Nap Rucker, who pitched the slowest ball that ever crept up on a big league outfielder, has retired from the service of the Brooklyn club, while Jean Dubuc, another rather famous slow-baller, is also through with the Detroit Tigers after some six years of splendid service.

To the layman it is often a mystery how these slow-ball pitchers could get by. Reporters, some of whom had played ball at college and elsewhere, would sit behind Jack Warhop's service, and their hands would itch for a bat so they could stick one of Hop's benders into the Harlem river. But Warhop, though never a star, lasted in the big league seven years. And Jack never had any luck, or he would have been rated much higher as a pitcher than was the case.

MAINTAINS OLD MEN'S HOME

Average Age of Players on Bill Clymer's Champions Is 28—Purdue Accused of Fudging.

After one studies the age statistics of the Louisville team the joke about Minneapolis being an old men's home falls flat. The average age of Bill Clymer's champions is twenty-eight. The youngest player is Fillers, aged twenty, and the oldest is Hub Perrine, who admits to thirty-four, while some say he has fudged a couple of years. Bebe and Daniels also are thirty-four, but were born later in the year than Hub.

NEW CALL FINDS RED CROSS READY

President Wilson Names War Council of and Urges All Who Can Contribute to Alleviation of Suffering and Distress to Give to Red Cross

A lengthy telegram was received today by Mrs. M. E. As a result the Red Cross organization has decided to at once prepare to meet the pressing calls from Europe and the emergency upon to confront us at home. ### SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Gordon Reed and Mrs. Charles M. Preston are spending several days in Washington D. C. where they have been joined by Mrs. Preston's son and daughter Mrs. Loretta White in Washington. Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Preston expect to attend the dedication of the new Red Cross building going to be representatives of the Ulster County Chapter.

That day's evening a most enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mrs. William Hampton Cuffey where the occasion being a miscellaneous show in honor of Miss Frances Reynolds whose coming marriage to Robert F. Muller has been announced. The room was beautifully decorated the color scheme being green and white. After many selections rendered on the violin and refreshments were served the color scheme being carried throughout in green and white. The bride to be received many beautiful gifts from those present who were Mrs. Garthwaite Smith, Miss Emma Marks, Miss Julia Muller, Mrs. Margaret Weber, Mrs. Mary Muller, Mrs. Anita Nickerson, Miss Grace Muller and Miss Rachel Muller.

Slater-Landers

The wedding of Joseph Slater and Miss Lulu H. Landers of New Paltz took place at All Saints rectory, Rosendale on Thursday May 10 at 3 p. m. the Rev. James G. Cameron, rector of All Saints Episcopal church officiating.

Mesopotamia

The Mesopotamia of the Bible "Ser" is between the two rivers, the Tigris and the Euphrates is a tract nearly 700 miles long and from 20 to 250 miles broad. Mesopotamia is first heard of in Scripture as the country where Nimrod and his family resided after quitting Ur of the Chaldees (Genesis xiv 10).

I really thought that manure was interesting in me. What distills once you. The matter of fact manner in which she called out "Next" — Kansas (The Journal)

Auction by Candle

Sale by candle a method of auction that was once very common through England and Scotland still survives in the north of England.

A judge and his servants take their seats at the auction table and a candle is placed on a stand and a servant provided with a box of tapers each of which will burn one minute. At a given signal a candle is lighted and the bidding for the object offered begins. At each offer from a bidder the purchaser the burning candle is extinguished and a new one lighted and the article is disposed of only when a candle burns itself out or a fresh bid has been announced by the clerk.

Fortunes in Picture Frames

The finest and costliest frame ever made for a picture is that which in closes the Virgin and Child in Milan cathedral. It is made of hammered gold with an inner molding of lapis lazuli. The corners of this valuable frame have been designed in large pearls and precious stones. Some idea of its value may be gained when it is stated that the frame is eight feet long and six feet wide. Its estimated worth is $1,000,000. One of the pictures in the Vatican at Rome is in a frame studded with jewels. The picture is a valuable one but the frame nearly equals the value of the painting. — London Telegraph

The River of Life

All life is lived in running liquid water. If the flow ceases the life stagnates and shortly dies.

The rule is absolute. The driest seeds or spores of microbes or those most minute objects that no microscope can reveal and no filter retain may survive with all their malignant possibilities for months or even decades of years. But it is only when they get into a stream of water that they can really live and multiply. — Dr. Saleeby in the Youth's Companion

Chippendale furniture was made in England. The original pieces were made by Thomas Chippendale about 1750-70. Genuine Chippendale brings high prices but there is little to be had.

War Reduces Insanity

War as a palliative of insanity is a theory unfamiliar to most people, but we have no reason to doubt the conclusions of Dr. Oswald of Glasgow lunatic asylum on the matter. One phase of the subject is instructive and significant. This is the removal of the powerful effect of poverty on the mind and its replacement by the higher standard of living and remunerative employment. Poverty and unemployment are thus by medical testimony more fertile causes of insanity than war. — London Globe

A watch's mainspring is two feet long. Japanese washbasin is raw turkey skin sliced thin.

The Justifiable Vanity of All Mankind

I very much like to meet the friend who says to him "that's a good looking suit you have on and yet will deny me statement that he has a touch of vanity in his make up

One likes eternally to look young and to feel that his neighbors think he looks young. His motto is his father's confession and this is the justifiable vanity of mankind just as it is of womankind. In their style and carefully selected fabrics their skillful tailoring and easy M. KANTROWITZ (a) pre-ent a marked difference from any other ready for service clothes. ## NO ELLENVILLE

FAIR THIS YEAR

There will be no Ulster County fair at Ellenville this season as the board of directors of the Ulster County Agricultural Society has decided that on account of the war it would not be wise to attempt to hold the annual outing. At a meeting held recently the board took this action in view of the fact that owing to the condition now existing on the country, the fair would undoubtedly be a losing proposition and should this be the case the directors would be called upon to make good the deficiency, so the cry of the hot dog man and the side show takers will not disturb the residents of Ellenville this year and "Dooce the Wonder" who "eats them alive" will miss his annual visit to Ellenville.

"I am in favor of it," replied the politician.

ANY PLAYER CAN BUNT

Athletes Overlook Opportunities to Improve Themselves.

Bunting is One Department of Game That Requires Consistent Practice, Whether Free Swinging or Scientific Form.

Major league baseball players who spoil the chances for victory in championship games through failure to bunt correctly, can blame themselves in nine cases out of ten thus with a wise manager like John McGraw.

A month in the South ought to suffice to turn a doubtful bunter into a sure man if the player takes advantage of his opportunities but the average player fails to show a disposedness to correct the fault during the training period and bunting practically is considered a hardship by most athletes.

One would think that a player would be sufficiently interested in his own welfare to practice bunting for ten or fifteen minutes every day but as a rule the average player wants to get up to the plate and see how far and how hard he can hit.

John McGraw remarked one day that the members of the famous Oriole team practiced all kinds of hitting for hours every day. The aggressive members of that team were not satisfied with the regular hitting practice which precedes every game. They went to the park every morning and became skillful through excessive practice. Willie Keeler the noted bunter was among this crowd and to these sessions he owed part of his skill. The team batting average for one season was over the 400 mark.

"Ball players think they are becoming proficient in hitting with twenty minutes practice each day," said McGraw. "They make the mistake in the field. The Baltimore club member used up the energies of every ball around the park for pitching duty and when they tried the groundkeeper sent out for more. If there is no deterrent of the game that requires consistent practice it is bating whether it be free swinging or the scientific form."
